ALFRED MUDGE & SON, PRINTERS,
24 FRANKLIN STREET.

THIS report has been prepared under the direction of a Committee consisting of our classmates FOOTE and PORTER and myself, in accordance with a vote of the class requesting that it should be published on the thirtieth anniversary of our graduation. Reports have been previously published by CHARLES A. ALLEN, then Class Secretary, in 1861, and by the late GEORGE DEXTER, Class Secretary, in 1864, 1868, and 1878, and the greater part of these previous reports is here reprinted, together with such additional information as has been since obtained. Of the ninety-one members of the class who graduated, sixty-one are still living, nearly all of whom have replied to my circular letter of inquiry. Of the twenty-eight temporary members of the class, seven are known to have died, and several others have not been heard from by the Secretary for many years. I should be glad to receive further information concerning them at any time.

The lives of our classmates who died in the war of 1861-1865 — EELLS, LOWELL, MASON, PATTEN, RICHARDSON, and SPURR — are recorded in the Harvard Memorial Biographies more fully than is practicable within the limits of this report.

I have been much assisted in preparing the report by Mr. AMORY ELIOT (H. U. 1877), and I desire also to acknowledge kind assistance received from Mr. WILLIAM H. TILLINGHAST, of the University Library.

JAMES C. DAVIS,
Class Secretary.

HARVARD COLLEGE.

OTIS PUTNAM ABERCROMBIE. — Born in Fitchburg, Sept. 3, 1836; son of Otis and Dorothy L. (Putnam) Abercrombie. After graduation, he spent a year in Worcester, and began the study of law in the office of Messrs. Devens & Hoar. In September, 1859, he entered the Harvard Law School, and remained in Cambridge three terms. In February, 1861, he removed to Springfield, and entered the office of Messrs. Beach & Bond. He was admitted to the bar in June, and in July received the degree of LL. B. In January, 1862, he opened an office in Milwaukee, Wis.; remaining there until May, 1864, when he removed to Chicago, and opened an office at No. 88 Washington Street. He visited New England in the summer of 1862, and again in 1866. He entered the firm of Tenney, McClellan & Tenney, in October, 1870. They were burned out in the great fire of the next year. The style of the firm then became Tenneys, Flower & Abercrombie. He married, May 22, 1873, Miss Kate M'Clure, of Milwaukee, who died in the following October. Remained in Chicago till June, 1880, when he removed to Gunnison, Col., then a new place in the Rocky Mountains, and remained there, engaged in the practice of his profession and attending to some mining interests, till June, 1885, when he returned to Lunenburg, Mass., where he has since remained. He is not at present engaged in any business, and has not been very well for the past year or more. From December, 1880, till he left Colorado, he was United States commissioner for that Judicial District. Address, Lunenburg, Mass.

HENRY ADAMS. — Born in Boston, Feb. 16, 1838; son of Charles Francis and Abigail (Brooks) Adams. He sailed for Europe in October, 1858, and passed two years in Germany, much of the time at the universities. Returning to America in November, 1860, he spent the winter in Washington as private secretary to his father, then a member of the House of Representatives. In 1861, Mr. Adams was appointed Minister to the Court of St. James; and the family removed to England in April, where they remained until 1868. After travelling on the Continent, he returned to Boston in July, 1868. After his return from Europe, he spent considerable time in Washington. He was appointed Assistant Professor of History in Harvard College, in September, 1870, and about the same time assumed the editorship of the "North American Review." He ceased to edit this in 1876, and resigned his professorship in June, 1877. He married, June 27, 1872, Marion, daughter of Dr. Robert W. Hooper, of Boston. He now resides in Washington, and is engaged in historical studies. He published "Chapters of Erie, and other Essays," in connection with his brother, Charles F. Adams, in 1871; "Essays in Anglo-Saxon Law," in 1876; "New England Federalism," in 1877; "Life of Albert Gallatin," in 1880; and "Life of John Randolph," in 1882. Mrs. Adams died at Washington, Dec. 6, 1885. June 3, 1886, he sailed for Liverpool, and visited Japan, returning in November. Address, 1603 H Street, Washington, D. C.

CHARLES ADAMS ALLEN. — Born in North Andover, Aug. 17, 1837; son of Charles Hastings and Sarah (Adams) Allen. He was Class Secretary from 1858 to 1864.

He was teacher of the High School in Concord, Mass., till September, 1860, when he returned to Cambridge, and entered his name as a resident graduate. He was occupied with private pupils until September, 1861, when he entered the Unitarian Theological School at Meadville, Penn. From this he was graduated June 30, 1864, and commenced preaching in New England. In October, he gathered and organized a society in Montpelier, Vt., called the Church of the Messiah, and was ordained its minister March 1, 1865. He prospered in his work, and dedicated a new church building in 1866. He resigned in 1869, and, after spending the winter of that year in Cambridge, sailed for Europe in the following May. He was absent about one year. In 1872, he took charge of the Unitarian Society in Westborough, Mass., from which he was called to the society in Dover, N. H., in 1875; to Brunswick, Me., in April, 1879; and to New Orleans, La., in October, 1881, where he is still settled. He was married in Mexico, Mo., July 22, 1884, to Lydia G. Locke, formerly of Plymouth, Mass. During his ministry in New Orleans, a debt of fifteen thousand dollars on the church has been paid and the congregation more than trebled. Published an essay on "The Christian Enthusiasm," in the "Unitarian Review" for April, 1888. He spends August and September in New England. Address, New Orleans, La.

GIDEON ALLEN, JR. — Born in New Bedford, Sept. 27, 1837; son of Gideon and Betsey (Nye) Allen. He went to New York, and engaged in business there, shortly after graduation. He was married Oct. 16, 1860, to Horatia, daughter of W. Howland, Esq., of Brooklyn. A daughter, named Mary Howland, was born to him in New Bedford, Dec. 20, 1861. In February, 1862, he removed to California, and entered the firm of Messrs. Green, Heath & Allen, San Francisco. His daughter died there, March 13, 1862. In April, 1865, he returned to New Bedford. A son, named George Swain, was born Dec. 9, 1867, and died April 15, 1883. A daughter, Helen H., was born Feb. 27, 1878. Continues to reside in New Bedford, Mass., and is engaged in business there with the Morse Twist and Drill Machine Co. Address, New Bedford, Mass.

FISHER AMES. — Born in Lowell, Jan. 24, 1838; son of Seth and <sup>Margaret F. (Bradford)</sup> Abby F. (Dana) Ames. In September, 1858, he entered the Law School, but left it in the following January, to enter the office of Messrs. Brooks & Ball, No. 40 State Street, Boston. He returned to the Law School in September, and took his degree of LL. B. in 1860. The next winter was passed in Dedham, in the office of Erastus Worthington, Esq.; and in April, 1861, he entered Judge Abbott's office in Boston. He was admitted to the Suffolk bar in October, 1861, and commenced practice at No. 30 Court Street. In September, 1863, he removed to South Boston. He purchased a farm in Hudson, Ill., in September, 1864, and stocked it with sheep; but, finding it unprofitable, sold it in November of the following year, and returned to Boston. He was married at Roxbury, Mass., to Virginia, daughter of the late George Lee, of New Orleans, Dec. 19, 1865. In January, 1866, he went to Yazoo City, Miss., and made arrangements for planting cotton; but, unable to secure laborers, abandoned the enterprise in April, and resumed the practice of his profession in Boston. He was appointed clerk to the City Solicitor, in May, 1866. Is engaged in the practice of his profession (law) in Boston. He has had four children: Rosalie, born Feb. 14, 1867; Fisher, April 17, 1869; Abbie Dana, Sept. 15, 1871; and Bradford, Nov. 29, 1874. Bradford died Jan. 28, 1885. He is the author of a small book entitled "Modern Whist," published by Harper & Bros. in 1879. He resides in West Newton. Has been secretary of the Newton Civil Service Reform Association; for several years member of the school committee of Newton, and chairman of the Board in 1885; and director of the Newton Athenæum. Address, 14 Beacon Street, Boston.

NICHOLAS LONGWORTH ANDERSON. — Born in Cincinnati, Ohio, April 22, 1838; son of Larz and Catherine (Longworth) Anderson. After graduation he visited the Northwest, and, in September, went to Europe with Adams, Cabot, Crowninshield, and Hunnewell. Studied at the German universities until November, 1860, when he returned to America. He began the study of law in Cincinnati, but, on the breaking out of the Rebellion, enlisted in the Guthrie Gray Battalion as a private. He was commissioned as adjutant of the Sixth Regiment Ohio Volunteers, April 19, 1861; lieutenant-colonel, June 12, 1861; and colonel, Aug. 19, 1862. He shared in the Western Virginia campaigns, and the marches and battles of Generals Buell, Rosecrans, and Thomas. He was slightly wounded at Shiloh, April 6, 1862, and more severely at Stone River, Jan. 1, 1863, and Chickamauga, Sept. 19, 1863. He was mustered out of service with his regiment in June, 1864. He has since been brevetted brigadier-general for gallant conduct at Stone River, and major-general for distinguished gallantry at Chickamauga; both commissions to date from March 13, 1865. After the war, resumed the study of law in Cincinnati. He married Elizabeth C. Kilgour, of Cincinnati, March 28, 1865. She is the daughter of the late John and Elizabeth (Higbee) Kilgour. He went with his wife to Europe, and spent eighteen months in travel. His son, Larz, was born in Paris, Aug. 15, 1866. He resumed his residence in Cincinnati in November. His second son, Carl Kilgour, was born there, Jan. 13, 1868, and died at Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 27, 1869. Took degree of A. M. in 1871. A daughter, Elizabeth Kilgour, was born in Cincinnati, Aug. 12, 1874. His son, Larz, fitted for Harvard at Exeter, and graduates at Harvard in the class of 1888. Has travelled in Europe four times since marriage. Lived in Cincinnati till June, 1881, when he moved to Washington, where he has since resided. Address 1530 K Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

* WILLIAM PITT GREENWOOD BARTLETT. — Born in Boston, Oct. 27, 1837; son of George and Catherine A. (Greenwood) Bartlett. Immediately after graduation, he accepted employment in the "Nautical Almanac" office, and was assistant computer there until 1861. In July, 1859, he was appointed proctor in the college. During this time he contributed much to the Mathematical Monthly and other newspapers, and was elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. In the summer of 1860, he went to Europe with Professor Peirce, to attend the anniversary meetings of various scientific societies. He took his degree of A. M. at the Commencement of 1861. He resigned his proctorship in November, 1862, but continued his connection with the "Nautical Almanac." His father died in the summer of 1864, and his family removed to Cambridge in the following October. About this time, his health, which was never robust, began to fail; and he was not spared long to enjoy his new home. He died at his mother's house, Jan. 13, 1865.

JOSHUA GARDNER BEALS. — Born in Boston, Aug. 23, 1836; son of William and Dolly (Whitney) Beals. In September, 1858, he entered the Harvard Law School, but left it in March of the following year, to connect himself with the Boston Post newspaper, of which, in 1865, he became one of the publishers. In 1875, he sold his interest in the Boston Post newspaper. Soon after, he entered into a limited partnership with E. W. Foster, as general agents of the New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Cincinnati, and other "newspaper unions." In 1880, he retired from active business. He was married, Oct. 25, 1865, to Edith Ware, daughter of George W. Simmons, Esq., of Boston. Three children, Gertrude, Gardner, and Sidney Lane Beals, have been born. Address, 328 Dartmouth Street, Boston.

ALANSON BIGELOW. — Born in Cambridge, Aug. 3, 1837; son of Alanson and Anne R. (Bangs) Bigelow. After graduation, he entered the store of his father's firm, Messrs. Bigelow Brothers & Co., Boston. He married, Nov. 6, 1862, Sarah Elizabeth, daughter of George Lane, Esq., of Newton. A son, named Alanson, was born, Dec. 21, 1863. A second son, Ernest, was born, Feb. 3, 1868, and is in the class of 1890 at Harvard. A third son, Homer Lane, was born Dec. 20, 1872, and is in the Cambridge Latin School. A daughter died in August, 1883, aged thirteen months. Another daughter was born in December, 1884. He was admitted a partner in the business, April 1, 1868, and the name of the firm changed to Bigelow, Kennard & Co. He resides in Cambridgeport. Address, 511 Washington Street, Boston.

EUGENE FREDERICK BLISS. — Born in Granville, N. Y., July 31, 1836; son of Cyrus and Susan (Fisher) Bliss. In September, 1858, he entered the law office of Messrs. Conger and Hawes, Janesville, Wis. In 1859, he accepted the position of private tutor in the family of Mrs. Frederick Dabney, and sailed for Fayal, Sept. 17. He returned to Boston in May, 1861, and soon after resumed his studies in Janesville. He was admitted to the bar, June 14, 1862, and to practice in the Supreme Court, July 10. In September, 1863, he removed to Cincinnati, and opened a private classical school. He took the degree of A. M. in 1866. His life, as master of a private classical school in Cincinnati, Ohio, was only varied by an occasional summer vacation trip to Europe. In 1877, he associated with himself, as partner in his school, the Rev. J. Babin. He gave up his school in June, 1879, and has since been in no business. Early in 1880, he went to Germany, returning in June of the next year. In the spring of 1883, he visited the Azores, and came back by way of Lisbon and Gibraltar. In June, 1885, was published the "Diary of David Zeisberger," in translating and editing which he had been busy for nearly two years. Address, No. 122 East 5th Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

* CHARLES BROOKS BRADBURY. — Born in Boston, April 5, 1837; son of Samuel Fox and Mary Ann (Leathe) Bradbury. He was appointed instructor of mathematics in Trinity School, New York, Sept. 15, 1858. In the autumn of 1863, he was made first assistant master of the school. He took his degree of A. M. in 1861. On July 1, 1863, he was married to Emily Harriette, daughter of Solomon and Harriette N. Sykes, of Peekskill, N. Y. A son, named Charles Fox, was born Nov. 4, 1864. His second child, Ellen Brooks, was born Jan. 6, 1871. He died in Morrisania, N. Y., of phthisis, Feb. 21, 1885. His son, C. F. Bradbury, writes from Morrisania, June 8, 1885, as follows: "I can say little or nothing more of my father than has already appeared in the class reports. The tenor of his ways was even, as he has said. The twenty-seventh year of his graduation is just closing, as well as the twenty-seventh of his connection with Trinity School, having commenced teaching there in September after graduating, and living most of that time in Morrisania, which is now a part of New York City proper. He identified himself with St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church of this place, of which he was a vestryman for fourteen years and a warden for ten years. For twenty-one years he was the only remaining member of his father's family, and now my mother, sister, and self are the remnant of his."

JOSIAH BRADLEE. — Born in Boston, Dec. 17, 1837; son of Frederick Hall and Lucretia (Wainwright) Bradlee.

In October, 1858, he went to Europe, and remained there, travelling, and studying music, until August, 1863. He married, March 17, 1864, Alice, daughter of F. B. Crowninshield, Esq., of Boston. He sailed again for Europe, March 30, and returned in about a year. He has four children: Sarah Crowninshield, born Feb. 5, 1865, in Paris, France; Frederic Josiah, born in Boston, March 28, 1866; James Bowdoin, born Jan. 31, 1873; and Francis Crowninshield, born April 20, 1881. Portions of his time have been spent in Europe, but he has continued to reside in Boston, first at No. 14 Marlboro' Street, and now at No. 247 Marlboro' Street.

RILEY ALLEN BRICK. — Born in New York City, Oct. 7, 1837; son of Joseph W. and Margaret (Allen) Brick. After graduation he succeeded to the iron business established by his father, in New York. He took charge of the Bergen Iron Works, Feb. 1, 1859, and continued in this employment for some years. He married, Jan. 10, 1861, Hannah Stone, daughter of Charles H. Brown, Esq., of Boston. His son, Arthur Wilkinson, was born Oct. 7, 1867. He has been a director in the Bridgeport and the Westchester County Gas Companies; in the New York Bible Society and Young Men's Christian Association; a trustee and treasurer of the House of Mercy; and a trustee of St. Luke's Hospital. Since 1868 he has devoted himself to the development of the town of Bricksburg, Ocean County, N. J., located on the line of the New Jersey Southern Railroad, and to the building of the Union Gas Works and the Northern Gas Works, both of New York. He was president of the first corporation until 1874, and has been treasurer of the second. He had a daughter born in 1871, who lived but a short time. His son, Arthur W., died Jan. 18, 1882. Address, 25 East 38th Street, New York City.

FREDERICK GEORGE BROMBERG. — Born in New York City, June 19, 1837; son of Frederic and Lisette C. (Beetz) Bromberg. After graduation he spent some time in Mobile, engaged in study and teaching. In January, 1860, he was in New Orleans, in business as an agent for Bromberg & Son, piano-forte makers. In June, 1861, he returned to Cambridge, and studied chemistry in the Lawrence Scientific School. In September, 1863, he was appointed a tutor of mathematics in Harvard College. He resigned in July, 1865, and returned to Mobile in the autumn. In June, 1867, he was elected a delegate to the first Republican State Convention held in Alabama, from Mobile. He was appointed city treasurer of Mobile by General Pope, commanding the district, July 26, 1867. In February, 1868, he was elected to the State Senate from Mobile, under the new constitution. He served in the Alabama State Senate until November, 1872. He was appointed postmaster at Mobile, in July, 1869, from which office he was removed in June, 1871, the place being wanted for some adherent of Senator Spencer, who at that time controlled the Federal patronage in Alabama. He was chairman of the Alabama delegation to the Cincinnati Convention of 1872; and, in October of that year, received a nomination for Representative of the First Alabama District in Congress. He was elected as a Liberal Republican, and served in the Forty-third Congress. He was a member of the Committee on Commerce, of the subcommittee in regard to the "Eads Jetties," and was active in an endeavor to establish a national system of quarantine measures. He introduced the resolution instructing the Committee on Banking to inquire into the management of the Freedman's Savings Bank, which finally led to the exposure and closing of that institution. He was renominated for the Forty-fourth Congress in 1874, but was defeated by Jeremiah Haralsson, a colored man, candidate of the administration party. He contested the seat, but the House decided against him. In August, 1876, he was again nominated for Congress by a meeting of citizens dissatisfied with the action of the regular convention. This nomination was indorsed by the Republican Convention, and Bromberg claims that he was elected but was "counted out." He was admitted to the bar Dec. 22, 1876. He was, in 1877, chairman of the Executive Committee of the "People's party," which carried the election. He writes, in 1878, that he "has permanently abandoned active political management, after more than ten years' continuous service in both the great national parties." He has written two articles on "The Law of National Quarantine." The first appeared originally in the "Southern Law Journal," December, 1878, and the second appeared in the Transactions of the Medical Association of the State of Alabama for 1880. "Report on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar" appeared in "Southern Law Journal," 1881. Article on "Legal Mathematics" appeared in "Alabama Law Journal," 1884. Article "On the Study of Greek" appeared in the Nation, Nov 15, 1883. He was tendered the nomination, by the "Citizens' party," of State senator from Mobile County for four years, at the 1884 election, but declined. The "Citizens' party" carried the election by a majority of more than three to one. Has been chairman of the Committee on Correspondence of the Alabama State Bar Association, by annual reappointment, for the last three or four years, and author of the reports of that committee to be found in the annual reports of the meetings of the Bar Association during that period. He is one of the vice-presidents of that association during the current year, and one of the delegates to represent that body at the national meeting of bar associations, held May 22, at Washington, D. C. He represented the Mobile Cotton Exchange and the Chamber of Commerce as the only delegate sent by them to the Western Water Ways Convention, held in Memphis, Tenn., in October, 1887, and was a member of the Committee on Resolutions of that body.

He visited Boston in May, 1888. His address is Mobile, Ala.

BENJAMIN GRAVES BROWN. — Born in Marblehead, Feb. 22, 1837; son of Samuel Horton and Mary Elizabeth (Graves) Brown. He was in charge of Marblehead Academy from December, 1858, till August, 1861, when he was appointed tutor of mathematics in Tufts College. He held this position until July, 1865, when he was elected Walker Professor of Mathematics. At the same time he received the degree of A. M. from Tufts College. He married in Marblehead, Feb. 12, 1863, Rosalia, daughter of Jonas Wilson Glenton, of England, and Teresa Gonzales, of Leon de Nicaragua. Is still Walker Professor of Mathematics in Tufts College. He has two children living, Robert Calthrop, born June 1, 1866, and Henrietta Noble, born July 4, 1871. Two daughters — Lizzie Teresa, born Jan. 31, 1864, died Feb. 7, 1865; and Rosa Glenton, born March 8, 1869, died March 12, 1869 — made up the list of his family. Has been member of the School Committee of Somerville since 1872, except about twenty months. Address, College Hill, Mass.

GEORGE CANNING BURGESS. — Born in Kingston, Mass., Dec. 9, 1831; son of Charles and Anne (Prince) Burgess. From September, 1858, to Aug. 9, 1861, he was teacher of the High School in Dighton. In November, 1861, he became cashier of the Dighton Woollen Company. Leaving the woollen business in May, 1864, he became treasurer of the Union Manufacturing Company, in Dighton, in July. From August, 1866, to 1868, he was engaged in the furniture business. He married Emma J. Cobb, of Dighton, April 1, 1863. His children are: Percival Gordon, born Feb. 20, 1864; George Herbert, born Nov. 28, 1867; Harrison Goodrich, born July 23, 1869; Ruth Prince, born July 14, 1870; Charles Stevens, born Feb. 14, 1873; and Caroline

Hastings, born July 17, 1880. In 1868, he became agent for the Travelers Insurance Company; and, in November, 1869, removed from Dighton to Portland, Me. A year afterward, he accepted a situation in the house of E. Churchill & Co., West India importers and commission merchants, of that place, which he held for several years. He has been for some years a member of the Portland School Board, Secretary of the Haydn Association, and Secretary of the Mercantile Library Association. At the celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of his native town (Kingston, Mass.), June 27, 1876, he prepared and read the poem. He has also published a poem for the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Portland Mercantile Library Association. He is one of the Vice-Presidents of the Harvard Club of that city. In 1882, he was elected one of the principal assessors of the city of Portland for three years, but resigned in 1883, when he was elected City Clerk of the city of Portland, which position he now holds. In April, 1887, he was appointed a member of the Board of Health for three years, and by the board elected Secretary and Executive Officer, and as such has written two annual reports. Has become a member of the Maine Genealogical Society. Address, 55 Atlantic Street, Portland, Me.

JOHN OTIS BURT.—Born in Syracuse, N. Y., April 27, 1835; son of Aaron and Eleanor R. (Otis) Burt. He wrote to the Secretary in May, 1885, as follows: "I left college in the spring of 1858, and travelled in Europe that year, with Joseph May of 1857. Before leaving Cambridge, I had asked our admirable President Walker, if my previous work might not entitle me to a degree, but received no definite answer. In August of that year, while on board a steamer on the Lake of Constance, I met Professor Francis Bowen, with whom I afterwards walked through part of Switzerland. He informed me that he remembered that my diploma had been granted at the last Faculty meeting which he attended, and I received it in due time on my return. In 1859-60, I studied medicine in Cambridge with Professor Jeffries Wyman, in Boylston Hall, and attended lectures at the Harvard Medical School. In 1860, went to New York City and entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons as student of Dr. John C. Dalton. In April, 1861, when the city was in a fever of excitement, I enlisted in the Ninth Regiment New York Volunteers, Colonel Van Huren; but there was such delay in fitting out the regiment for service, that I entered the navy as assistant surgeon, passing the regular examination and obtaining my commission July 30, 1861. Was ordered to the frigate Colorado in the Gulf squadron under Farragut, and later to the Naval Hospital at the mouth of the Mississippi with Surgeon Philip S. Wales. After the capture of New Orleans, I was ordered to the Mississippi squadron, and assigned to the iron-clad Cairo, Lieut.-Commander Selfridge. Soon after, the Cairo was destroyed by a torpedo in the Yazoo River, noticeable as the first time a torpedo was ever effectively employed in warfare — the small beginning of our present great torpedo service. This one was a simple affair, but sufficed to blow the whole bottom out of our boat, which sank, in about six minutes, in six or seven fathoms of water. (She was attempting to get to the rear of the Vicksburg works.) I was then ordered to the gunboat Conestoga, where I remained till Nov. 23, 1863, when I resigned my commission on account of continued ill health. I married, Feb. 25, 1864, Helen Narcissa Moulton, of Marcy, Oneida County, N. Y., daughter of Dr. Franklin and Almira (Cary) Moulton. After a year's residence in Paris and Vienna, occupied in medical study, I returned to New York and graduated in medicine at the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Have since resided principally in Syracuse, N. Y. I have not been able to do a full practice owing to bad health contracted during my Mississippi service, where I served summer and winter without a day's leave of absence, in a trying climate. Have held the office of City Physician (Health Physician) in Syracuse, and was for four or five years one of the visiting physicians to St. Joseph's Hospital. When the Geneva Medical College was removed to Syracuse, and became the Medical Department of Syracuse University, I was appointed Assistant Professor of Chemistry, of which branch I later had full charge, and established the present laboratory. I was afterwards made Professor of Materia Medica, but soon after gave up my connection with the college, after a service of seven years. Went to Fayal, Azores, for a time, and returned to Syracuse. My wife died Jan. 4, 1873, after a few days' illness, of typhoid pneumonia, leaving three children: Arthur Temple, born in Paris, France, Dec. 17, 1864; Aaron Moulton, born in Syracuse, N. Y., May 1, 1866; and John Otis, Jr., born in Syracuse, May 16, 1869. My oldest son is a farmer in the Onondaga Valley, and married, April 3, 1885, Emma J. Hunt. The second son is with a surveying party on the Grand River, Colorado. The youngest is attached to the nautical school ship St. Mary's, now on a cruise to the Azores and Mediterranean ports." May 21, 1888, he writes: "Since last report I have been 'invested with the ancient and honorable title of grandfather.' My oldest son, Arthur, has a child, born in May, 1887, and named Helen Lucy." Address, 46 Warren Street, Syracuse, N. Y.

LOUIS CABOT. — Born in Brookline, July 1, 1837; son of Samuel and Eliza (Perkins) Cabot. He sailed for Europe in October, 1858, and remained one year. Shortly after his return, he began the study of architecture in the office of Mr. E. C. Cabot, Boston. He received a commission as second lieutenant, First Massachusetts Cavalry, Dec. 26, 1861. He was commissioned first lieutenant, Second Massachusetts Cavalry, Jan. 15, 1863; captain in same regiment, May 12, 1863; major in Fourth Massachusetts Cavalry, Jan. 25, 1864. He saw much active service in Virginia with these regiments.

He left the army by resignation, Jan. 17, 1865. He resides in Brookline. He was married, April 22, 1869, to Amy, daughter of Augustus Hemenway, of Boston. Address, Brookline, Mass.

*GEORGE BRADFORD CHADWICK. — Born in Ipswich, Jan. 3, 1836; son of George and Susan Brewster (Gilbert) Chadwick. After graduation, he lived in Salem, and studied architecture, for which he had developed a taste while in college, with George Sewall, Esq., of Boston. In September, 1860, he removed to New York, and studied with R. M. Hunt, Esq. Ill health soon forced him to relinquish his studies. He came to Northampton in May, 1861, in the hope of gaining strength, but failed rapidly, and finally died there, Aug. 12, 1861.

BRADBURY LONGFELLOW CILLEY. — Born in Nottingham, N. H., Sept. 6, 1838; son of Joseph Longfellow and Lavinia Bayley (Kelly) Cilley. He was appointed tutor in Albany Academy, New York, Dec. 6, 1858, and remained there until Feb. 14, 1859, when he was made assistant master at Phillips Exeter Academy. He took his degree of A. M. in 1862. He married, Aug. 3, 1864, Amanda C., daughter of John and Amanda (Currier) Morris, of Dover, N. H. A son, named Frank Morris, was born Dec. 12, 1866. His daughter, Lavinia, was born Sept. 13, 1868, and died Dec. 4, 1876. His son, Robert Longfellow, born Dec. 17, 1870, died Dec. 13, 1871. His son, Gilbert Longfellow, born March 6, 1874, died April 5, 1876. Daughter Mabel, born Nov. 14, 1878; and daughter Helen, born Aug. 30, 1882. Continues to be Professor of Ancient Languages in Phillips Exeter Academy. Is a member of the New Hampshire Historical Society; corresponding member of the New York Historical Society; member of the Webster Historical Society; also, of the American Philological Association. His son Frank is in the employ of the C., B. & Q. R. R., at Chicago. Address, Exeter, N. H.

JONATHAN LONGFELLOW CILLEY.—Born in Cincinnati, O., Jan. 25, 1838; son of Jonathan and Sarah (Lee) Cilley. After graduation, he began the study of medicine with Dr. W. H. Mussey, in Cincinnati. During 1863, he was carrying on a farm in Glendale, O., ill health having compelled him to give up his medical studies. In 1864, he served in the Seventh Ohio National Guard (100 days men), and afterwards went into the navy, and served on the Mississippi River gunboats. He took his medical degree from the Miami Medical College of Cincinnati, March 1, 1866, and was appointed one of the physicians in the Commercial Hospital of that city. Continues to practise medicine at Cincinnati, O. He became Demonstrator of Anatomy in the Miami Medical College of that city in September, 1871; and Professor of Physiology and Histology in the Ohio College of Dental Surgery in November, 1873. He was married, April 26, 1869, to Mary P. Hubbard, of Sunnyside, Ky. He has a daughter named May, born Jan. 19, 1870; a son named Raymond, born Dec. 5, 1871; a son born Feb. 7, 1878, named Morgan; and a daughter, Lucia, born July 13, 1880. He has done some writing for medical journals, and notice has been taken of his articles in medical journals of other cities. Prof. T. Dwight, of the Harvard Medical School, gives him the credit, in a footnote in his work entitled "Frozen Sections," of being the first in English writings correctly to describe what medical men understand as the main fissure of the lungs. He is of reputation as an anatomist. He severed his connection with the Miami Medical College in June, 1878, and associated himself with "The Medical College of Ohio," in October of the same year. With it he is still connected, having been its Demonstrator in Anatomy till March, 1887, when he was made Adjunct Professor of Anatomy. He is also lecturer in Osteology, having filled that lectureship since the spring of 1882. He resigned his position in the Ohio College of Dental Surgery in 1880. In October, 1887, he was appointed Lecturer on Artistic Anatomy in the Cincinnati Museum Association Art Academy. Address, 411 Broadway, Cincinnati, O.

* JOHN EDWARD COBB. — Born in Sandwich, Aug. 2, 1836; son of the Rev. Asahel Cobb. Immediately after graduation he began the study of medicine with Dr. Hubbard, in Taunton. He attended lectures in the Harvard Medical School, and was also house pupil in the Chelsea Marine Hospital. He took his degree of M. D. in March, 1861, and opened an office in Weir Village, Taunton. In September, 1861, he went into the navy as acting assistant surgeon. He was on the Ino in 1861; on the Kensington, Western Gulf squadron, in 1863. In October, 1863, he was ordered to the supply steamer Newbern, North Atlantic blockading squadron. In February, 1865, he was ordered to the Florida. He resigned his commission, May 25, 1865, having been married to Abby Tobey, daughter of the Hon. Willard Nye, of New Bedford, Jan. 12, 1865. He settled in Taunton, and was engaged in the practice of his profession there until November, 1869, when he accepted a position in the Boston Custom House, which he retained until May, 1874, when failing health compelled him to abandon all active employment. He returned to Taunton, where, during the remainder of his life, he was confined to his room, and, during a great part of the time, to his bed, suffering under a disease contracted in his naval services before Port Hudson and Vicksburg, ten years earlier. He was removed to New Bedford in the spring of 1877, where he died Sept. 23, 1877.

GEORGE WASHINGTON CROSBY. — Born in Leominster, Oct. 23, 1835; son of John and Elizabeth (Wilkins) Crosby. He was taken sick with fever shortly before our Class Day, and confined at home with illness for nearly a year. In the spring of 1859, he was teaching in Brooklyn, N. Y. ; and in Bradford in the autumn. The following winter he taught in King George County, Va. In 1860, he was in his brother's jewelry store in Boston. He became book-keeper to Messrs. Tower & White, Hanover Street, Boston, in 1862. During 1863-64, he occupied the same position with Messrs. Wilcox, White & Co., Winter Street. He became book-keeper with Messrs. R. H. White & Co., in 1865, and now has charge of the book-keeping and of the finances and credits of the same firm. He was married, June 6, 1869, to Helen A. Searle, of Newark, N. J. His son, Charles Francis, was born June 23, 1871, and died July 11, of the same year. His son, John Francis, was born July 2, 1872. He lives in Newton. Address, 518 Washington Street, Boston.

BENJAMIN WILLIAM CROWNINSHIELD. — Born in Boston, March 12, 1837; son of Francis Boardman and Sarah Gool (Putnam) Crowninshield. In October, 1858, he sailed for Europe, and spent the winter in Hanover. Passing the next winter in Berlin, he returned to this country in November, 1860, and entered the office of the Merrimack Manufacturing Company, of which his father was treasurer. He was commissioned first lieutenant in the First Massachusetts Cavalry, Dec. 19, 1861; captain in the same regiment, March 26, 1862; major, Aug. 10, 1864. He distinguished himself in several engagements in Virginia. He served on the staff of Major-General Sheridan as aide-de-camp and provost marshal general from July 26 to Nov. 1, 1864. He was discharged from the army at the expiration of his term of service, Nov. 7, 1864. Was made brevet colonel, June 17, 1865. He took his degree of A. M. in course, in 1861. He was married, Dec. 15, 1866, to Katharine May, daughter of James Bowdoin Bradlee, Esq., of Boston. He removed to New York, and entered the dry-goods commission business, Jan. 1, 1867. The name of his firm was Sprague, Colburn & Co. He returned to Boston in the spring of 1869, where he became a member of the firm of Wheelwright, Anderson & Co., dry-goods commission merchants, at No. 70 Franklin Street, and in 1879 retired from business. Became a resident of Marblehead, Mass., in 1881. In winter, lives at 209 Beacon Street, Boston. He has five children: Bowdoin Bradlee, born Oct. 13, 1867; Francis Boardman, born April 22, 1869; Benjamin Williams, born April 21, 1871; Katharine Bradlee, born Nov. 5, 1874; and Emily, born June 18, 1879. "Boys 1 and 2 in Harvard College '90 and '91, and No. 3 in the best school in Boston — Noble's." Address, 22 Congress Street, Boston.

*HOWARD FRANKLIN DAMON. — Born in Scituate, April 6, 1833; son of Calvin and Lucy B. (Clapp) Damon. Immediately after graduation, he began the study of medicine at the Harvard Medical School, and in 1861, received the degree of M. D. At the same Commencement he took his degree of A. M. He was appointed district physician to the Boston Dispensary in 1862, and shortly afterwards, its superintendent. He was appointed admitting physician to the City Hospital in 1864; in April, 1868, a new department, for the treatment of skin diseases among out-patients, having been established, he was selected to take charge of it. He was a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society; the Boston Society for Medical Improvement; and the American Medical Association. To the anniversary meetings of this last, he was three times a delegate, and at its Boston meeting he was one of the committee of arrangements. He was Secretary of the Boston Society for Medical Observation, and of the Boston Obstetrical Society. He delivered a poem before the Mercantile Library Association, in November, 1858, which has since been printed. He gained the Boylston medical prize, with an essay on "Leucocythemia," Aug. 5, 1863, which was published in the next year. He published "Neuroses of the Skin,"

"Photographs of the Skin," and several other medical treatises. He continued to practise medicine in Boston until his death, at his residence, 2 Decatur Street, Sept. 17, 1884.

JAMES CLARKE DAVIS. — Born in Greenfield, Jan. 19, 1838; son of George T. and Harriet T. (Russell) Davis. After graduation, he began the study of law in his father's office in Greenfield, and pursued it there, and in the Harvard Law School (where he spent a year), until Jan. 16, 1861, when he was admitted to the bar, and became a member of his father's firm at Greenfield. On Jan. 1, 1862, he removed to Boston, where he has since practised law. He was appointed clerk to the Attorney-General of the Commonwealth, Jan. 18, 1865, and Assistant Attorney-General, April 1, 1868. He prepared for the city of Boston "A Digest of Decisions of Municipal Interest of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts," which was published by the city in 1866. He resigned the position of Assistant Attorney-General, March 1, 1873. He was married, June 3, 1873, to Alice W., daughter of the late Charles Paine, Esq., of Worcester, Mass. A daughter, Ellen Harriet, was born Nov. 20, 1876. A second daughter, Alice Paine, was born Aug. 15, 1882. Changed his residence from No. 4 Mt. Vernon Place, Boston, to Forest Hills Street, Jamaica Plain, in April, 1883. Removed his office from 30 Court Street to the Mason Building in November, 1886. Visited Europe in the summer of 1878, also in the summer of 1881. Was a member of the School Committee of Boston, 1882-87. Is one of the Trustees and Secretary of the Adams Nervine Asylum. Has the charge of Beck Hall, in Cambridge, and the Mason Building, in Boston, and of several trust estates. Address, 70 Kilby Street, Boston.

*GEORGE DEXTER. — Born in Cincinnati, O., July 18, 1838; son of Edmund and Mary A. (Dellinger) Dexter. In August, 1858, he sailed for Europe, and travelled in Germany and France. Returning in December, he entered the Harvard Law School in March, 1859. He took his degree of LL. B. in 1860, and passed the next year in Cambridge as a resident graduate. He sailed again for Europe in July, 1861, and returned in July, 1862, resuming his residence in Cambridge. In May, 1864, he went to garrison the batteries at Provincetown, Cape Cod, in the Twelfth Unattached Company, M. V. M. He returned in August. He sailed again for Europe in September, 1865, and spent the winter in Paris. He travelled in England, and returned to this country in June, 1866. He was engaged in business in Maine during the autumn ; but finding it unprofitable, he gave it up, and returned to Cambridge in February, 1867. In September, 1869, he was appointed Tutor of Modern Languages in Harvard College, which place he resigned in October, 1870, to take the office of Steward. He resigned this office Dec. 31, 1871. He was married Sept. 17, 1868, to Lucy Waterston, daughter of Charles Deane, Esq., of Cambridge. Their children are : Helen Ruthven, born June 13, 1869 ; Lucy Waterston, born Oct. 3, 1870, died April 2, 1873 ; Mary Deane, born Nov. 21, 1871 ; Margaret Ruthven, born July 15, 1875, died Jan. 11, 1881 ; and Julius, born April 9, 1883, died Aug. 8, 1884. He was a member of the American Antiquarian Society, and Recording Secretary of the Massachusetts Historical Society. He was Class Secretary from 1864 to 1883. He went to Europe for his health from October, 1880, to June, 1881. Aug. 30, 1883, he left Cambridge with his family, and went to Santa Barbara, Cal., to reside, and died there Dec. 18, 1883.

* WILLIAM HALE DUNNING. — Born in Mobile, Ala., Nov. 12, 1836 ; son of Edward and Martha W. (Turner) Dunning. The first year after graduation, he was Classical Tutor in Williston Academy, Easthampton. He then returned to Cambridge, and entered his name as a resident graduate. In September, 1860, he entered the Andover Theological Seminary, from which he was graduated Aug. 3, 1863. He was ordained and installed as pastor of the First Congregational Church in Rockport, Mass., in February, 1864. On April 7 of that year, he was married to Katherine Kelley, daughter of the Hon. Alfred and Mary (Welles) Kelley, of Columbus, O. In October, 1865, he obtained leave of absence for a year from his parish, on account of ill health, and immediately sailed for Europe. He resumed his parochial duties in November, 1866. His health was not so good as his friends could wish, and in September, 1867, he was, at his own request, dismissed from his pastoral charge. He made a visit to Ohio, and spent the winter in Augusta, Ga., whence he wrote that he was endeavoring to re-establish his health in a mild climate. He had one child, a son, Arthur Wilkinson, born Sept. 23, 1867. He returned to Ohio, and spent the summer of 1868 in Cambridge, but was ordered to the drier climate of the Northwest for the winter. He went to Minnesota, and established himself in Faribault. The lung disease, from which he had suffered so many years, was followed by an affection of the heart; and, on the 9th of February, 1869, he suddenly fell dead from his chair.

ROBERT THAXTER EDES. — Born in Eastport, Me., Sept. 23, 1838; son of Richard Sullivan and Mary (Cushing) Edes. After graduation, he spent three years in the study of medicine in Boston, and other places; receiving the degree of M. D. from Harvard College, in July, 1861. He applied for the position of assistant surgeon in the Massachusetts Volunteers; but accepted a similar place in the navy, Sept. 10. He decided to offer himself for the regular service; and, after examination, was appointed, Sept. 30, and ordered to the Naval Hospital, Brooklyn. In December, he was ordered to the mortar flotilla, under command of Admiral Porter, then fitting out at Brooklyn. His vessel, the flag-ship of one of the divisions, sailed in February, and had a share in the bombardment of Fort Jackson, under Admiral Farragut. His commission as assistant surgeon, dated Jan. 26, 1862, reached him about this time. The flotilla went up the river to Vicksburg, and took part in the siege of that place. He was transferred to the Black Hawk in August, 1863. He remained on this vessel until July, 1864, the most noteworthy event in this service being a share in the Red River campaign. On July 14, he was ordered to the Naval Hospital at Chelsea, where he remained until May 13, 1865, having in the mean time passed his examination, and received a recommendation for promotion. His rank of passed assistant surgeon dates from May 8, 1865. He was ordered to the Colorado, flag-ship of the European squadron, on May 13; but, having waited only to be notified of promotion to send in his resignation, his connection with that vessel was very short. His resignation was accepted June 1, 1865. He sailed for Germany, Aug. 26, and spent some time in medical study in Vienna and Paris. He returned to Boston in February, 1866, and began practice in Dorchester, but removed to Hingham, June 26, 1866. He married, April 30, 1867, Elizabeth Townsend, daughter of Calvin W. and Anna K. Clark, of Boston. He received the prize offered by the Medical Association for the best essay on "Nature in Disease." In May, 1869, he received from the New York Academy of Medicine the O'Reilly prize of $600, for an essay on the "Sympathetic Nervous System." About the same time he removed from Hingham to Roxbury. In 1870, he was appointed Assistant Professor of Materia Medica in Harvard University, and, in 1875, full professor of the same. He is a member of the Boston Natural History Society, and of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. His wife, Elizabeth Townsend (Clark), died Dec. 7, 1877, leaving four children: Anne Balch, born May 2, 1868; Richard Edward, born Oct. 26, 1869; Elizabeth Townsend, born Sept. 23, 1871; and Mary Thaxter, born Feb. 8, 1876. He married, Dec. 20, 1881, Anna C., daughter of Wm.

H. Richardson, of Dorchester. Removed to Boston in 1882. Was appointed Jackson Professor of Clinical Medicine in 1884. Was visiting physician at the City Hospital for several years. In September, 1886, having resigned his professorship in the Medical School and his connection with the City Hospital, he removed with his family to Washington, D. C., where he resides, and is engaged in active practice. He has become a member of the Philosophical Society of Washington, and of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia. Published in 1883, "Therapeutic Handbook of the U. S. Pharmacopœia"; in 1887, a book on Therapeutics and Materia Medica. Has made various contributions to medical periodicals, and is also the author of two articles in Pepper's "American System of Medicine," Vols. IV. and V. His son is an undergraduate at Johns Hopkins University. Address, 1216 Eighteenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

*SAMUEL HENRY EELLS. — Born in Oberlin, O., Aug. 19, 1836; son of James Henry and Maria A. (Fletcher) Eells. After graduation, he went to Detroit, Mich., to reside in the family of his guardian, G. N. Fletcher, Esq., and began the study of medicine with Dr. C. H. Barrett. He also attended the medical lectures of Michigan University, at Ann Arbor, during the winter of 1860-61. He never received the degree of M. D., not having completed the full course of study. He was appointed hospital steward in the Twelfth Michigan Volunteers, then in camp at Niles, Feb. 7, 1862. In March, the regiment was sent South, and shared in the battle of Shiloh, where Eells was taken prisoner with the regimental hospital. He was held only a few days, there being an agreement between the surgeons on both sides that the wounded in the joint hospitals should be allowed to return to their respective camps on recovery, and their hospital attendants with them. The regiment was soon attached to General McClelland's division of the reserve, and employed in guard duty at various points on the railroad lines, chiefly at Bolivar, Tenn. He received a commission as assistant surgeon of his regiment, Feb. 1, 1863. Early in June, it was ordered to join the army collected before Vicksburg, and was stationed at Snyder's Bluff until the fall of Vicksburg, July 4, 1863. The regiment was next attached to the expedition sent up the Big Black River. The country and the season were both perilous, and Eells probably contracted his disease by exposure at this time. In August, he joined General Steele's expedition into Arkansas, and suffered much from chills and fever and ulcerated sore throat. He remained at Little Rock until Dec. 1, then returned to Detroit on sick leave. When he reached home he could not speak above a whisper; and, though he seemed to improve at first, his lungs were soon found to be seriously affected, and he rapidly lost strength. He died of bronchial consumption, at his uncle's house in Detroit, Jan. 31, 1864.

* PAUL MITCHELL ELIOT. — Born in New Bedford, Sept. 13, 1837; son of Thomas Dawes and Frances L. (Brock) Eliot. His life in college served only to strengthen his taste for business pursuits, and, immediately after graduation, he went to St. Louis to seek an entrance into commercial life. In January, 1859, he entered the counting-room of the Atlantic Mills Company, where he remained one year. He then entered the store of Messrs. F. B. Chamberlain & Co. While in their employ, in the summer of 1860, he was affected by a sunstroke, from which he never recovered. In November of that year, he left St. Louis on account of his health, and after spending the winter in Washington, where his father was attending Congress, he returned to New Bedford in March, 1861. His brain became affected by the disease under which he was laboring, and he was placed in a private hospital in New York, and died there Nov. 26, 1862.

CHARLES FAIRCHILD. — Born in Cleveland, O., April 10, 1838; son of Jairus C. and Sally (Blair) Fairchild. After graduation, he began the study of the law in Madison, Wis. He was appointed clerk of the Circuit Court, Jan. 1, 1860. He entered the office of Messrs. Palmer & Stark, in Milwaukee, in January, 1861. In April of the same year, at the breaking out of the Rebellion, he joined the First Wisconsin Regiment, and served with it in Maryland as ensign and first lieutenant. The term of service of the regiment expired Aug. 17, 1861, and he returned to his home. He was in the employ of Messrs. Fairchild & O'Connor, Wood County, Wis., till March 5, 1862, when he received the appointment of acting assistant paymaster in the navy, with orders to the gunboat Mahaska. His vessel served in the James River and neighborhood till August, 1863, when it was attached to the South Atlantic squadron, and shared in the operations before Charleston. He was appointed assistant paymaster in the regular service, June 30, 1864, and resigned Dec. 6, 1864. He entered the Harvard Law School in the spring of 1865, and left it at the close of the next winter term. He returned to the West, and in January, 1866, was appointed secretary to his brother, then elected governor of Wisconsin. In December, 1866, he came to Boston, and entered the employment of S. D. Warren, Esq., paper manufacturer. He took the degree of A. M. in 1867. He became a partner in the firm of S. D. Warren & Co., dealers in paper, Jan. 1, 1871. He was married, Aug. 20, 1868, to Elizabeth E. Nelson, daughter of the Hon. Albert H. Nelson, of Boston, and has seven children: Sally, born June 17, 1869; Lucia, born Dec. 6, 1870; Charles Nelson, born March 8, 1872; John Cummings, born March 7, 1874; Blair, born June 23, 1877; Nelson, born Sept. 22, 1879; and Gordon, born Jan. 31, 1882. Retired from the firm of S. D. Warren & Co., Sept. 1, 1880, and entered the firm of Lee, Higginson & Co., bankers, on the same day.

Continues to be a member of that firm. Address, 44 State Street, Boston.

WILLIAM ELIOT FETTE.—Born in St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 11, 1839; son of Henry G. and Margaret M. (Davenport) Fette. He opened a school for boys, Sept. 20, 1858, in the building in the rear of Beacon Hill Place, Boston. He removed to a room in Allston Hall at the expiration of the second year, and remained there one year. During all this time, his residence was in Cambridge; but in October, 1861, his family removed to Boston, and he transferred his school to their new residence in Boylston Place. Here he remained five years, and gradually raised the grade of his school from an intermediate to a classical school. In October, 1867, he removed both school and residence to No. 42 Hancock Street, and changed the name of the former to West End Latin School. In May, 1868, he again removed the school to No. 24 Charles Street; the preparatory department remaining in Hancock Street. He took the degree of A. M. in 1862. He was married, April 15, 1875, in Newark, N. J., to Eliza Heyer, daughter of the Rev. Abraham Polhemus, D. D. In June, 1875, he disposed of his school, and, in October of the same year, went to Europe, where he spent two years in travelling, and where, in Zurich, Switzerland, his daughter, Margaret Davenport, was born, June 13, 1876. In 1870 and 1871, he published two series of "Dialogues from Dickens." Went to Europe in 1885 for needed rest, with his family. His residence and address, No. 11 Walnut Street, Boston.

HENRY WILDER FOOTE.—Born in Salem, June 2, 1838; son of Caleb and Mary W. (White) Foote. After some little time devoted to regaining his health, which had suffered from a severe illness during the most of our Senior year, he entered the Cambridge Divinity School in October, 1858. From this he was graduated in course in July, 1861. After preaching in several places in the West, and declining an invitation to be settled as minister of the Stone Church in Portsmouth, N. H., he accepted, in November, a call to King's Chapel, Boston, and was ordained its minister Dec. 22, 1861. He took the degree of A. M. at the Commencement of that year. He was married, July 9, 1863, to Frances A., daughter of the late Hon. Samuel A. and Mary (Lyman) Eliot. His daughter Mary was born Nov. 6, 1864. He remained constantly at his post in Boston, until he took a nine-months' vacation, passed in travelling in Europe; sailing from Boston, Feb. 13, 1867, and returning Nov. 9. A twin son and daughter were born Feb. 2, 1875, Henry Wilder and Frances Eliot. A daughter, Dorothea, was born Nov. 3, 1880. His daughter Mary died Dec. 10, 1885. He was in Europe for his health from May to December, 1878, visiting Spain, Greece, Constantinople, Palestine, and Egypt. Returned, still quite out of health with an affection of the throat, and spent the spring of 1879 at Aiken, S. C., where his children were dangerously ill, and his return to his duties was postponed till September. He is still rector of King's Chapel, Boston. He is a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, and the American Antiquarian Society of Worcester. He is the author of the "Annals of King's Chapel," Vol. I. of which was published in 1882, and Vol. II. is now in press. In 1887 was published the "Two Hundredth Anniversary of King's Chapel, Boston," containing some historical sermons, and he has published other occasional sermons. Address, 25 Brimmer Street, Boston.

WILLIAM HENRY FOX.—Born in Taunton, Aug. 29, 1837; son of Henry H. and Sarah A. (Burt) Fox. From graduation until 1860, he was teacher of the academy at Myricksville, and engaged in reading law. In 1860, he entered the office of Judge Bennett, in Taunton, and remained there until Sept. 17, 1861, when he was admitted to the bar. He was elected commissioner of insolvency for Bristol County, Nov. 4, 1862. Governor Andrew appointed him special justice of the Taunton Police Court, May 11, 1863. After this court was abolished, he was made trial justice at Taunton, in May, 1864. He was appointed principal justice of the new Municipal Court in Taunton, Dec. 16, 1864. This court went into operation, Jan. 4, 1865. He married, Oct. 6, 1864, Anna M., daughter of James H. and Harriet M. Anthony, of Taunton. He was elected Mayor of that city in December, 1872, and served one year. He was appointed, July 1, 1874, Justice of the First District Court of Bristol County, which office he still holds. His children are William Yale, born June 26, 1865; Marion, born April 12, 1870; and Francis Bird, born Jan. 27, 1876. He took his degree of A. M. in 1871. He is one of the Trustees of the Wheaton Female Seminary, of the Taunton Public Library, and of the Bristol County Savings Bank, being also Vice-President of the last-named institution. Address, Taunton, Mass.

GEORGE EBENEZER FRANCIS. — Born in Lowell, May 29, 1838; son of James B. and Sarah W. (Brownell) Francis. After graduation, he entered the office of the Brooklyn City Water Works, and remained there about one year, when he began the study of medicine at the Chelsea Marine Hospital and the Harvard Medical School. From June 16 to Sept. 1, 1861, he was volunteer assistant surgeon at Fortress Monroe. Upon his return home, he re-entered the Medical School; and in May, 1862, he was appointed one of the house surgeons at the Massachusetts General Hospital. In August, 1862, after the battle of Cedar Mountain, he was sent by Surgeon-General Dale to Culpeper, as volunteer surgeon to the Massachusetts regiments. His services were not found necessary, and he was made contract surgeon at General Banks's headquarters. He was in Pope's retreat, and at the battle of Antietam, and returned home in October. He received his degree of M. D. in March, 1863, and was appointed acting assistant surgeon in the navy, May 15. He served in the West, chiefly on the Mississippi River and at Cairo. He was ordered to the Ouichita, a large iron-clad in the Mississippi River squadron, Jan. 3, 1864. He came home on a short furlough immediately afterwards. At the expiration of his leave, he joined his vessel, and shared in the Red River campaigns. He resigned his commission, Oct. 28, 1865, having just settled to the practice of his profession in Worcester. He was married, June 23, 1868, to Rebecca Newton, daughter of Frank Harrison and Elizabeth (Parker) Kinnicutt, of Worcester. Continues to practise medicine in Worcester. His daughter, Elizabeth, was born Aug. 14, 1869. His son, George Kinnicutt, was born Nov. 24, 1871, and died Dec. 20, 1877. He took his degree of A. M. in 1872. Has been elected to membership in various State and city medical societies; and is a member of the American Antiquarian Society and the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. Becoming interested in photography, he has been a member of various societies connected with that art, especially of the Worcester Camera Club, of which he has been President since its organization in 1885. Is Visiting Surgeon to the Worcester City Hospital. Address, 79 Elm Street, Worcester.

HENRY WALKER FROST. — Born in Concord, April 29, 1838; son of Barzillai and Elmira (Stone) Frost. In September, 1858, he began the study of the law in the offices of Judge Hoar, in Concord and Boston. He attended the lectures of the Harvard Law School in 1859-60. In June of the latter year he gained the Bowdoin prize for resident graduates, with a dissertation on "The Various Tenures on which Land is held in Different Countries, considered as affecting the Economical and Political Condition of the People." In November, 1860, he entered the office of Messrs. Hazelton & Ware, No. 81 Washington Street, Boston, and was admitted to the Suffolk bar, Sept. 11, 1861. He edited the "United States Digest" for 1865, 1866, and 1867. Continues the practice of his profession. His address is No. 40 State Street, Boston.

* SIMON GREENLEAF FULLER. — Born in Andover, Sept. 11, 1838; son of Samuel and Charlotte K. (Greenleaf) Fuller. In October, 1858, he entered the General Theological Seminary of the Episcopal Church in New York. After spending a year in study there, he removed to the Berkeley School at Middletown, Conn., of which his father was then elected a professor. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Williams at Middletown, May 22, 1861. He was married, the next day, to Celeste Parmalee, daughter of the late Rev. William Bostwick, of Flushing, L. I. On June 8, he was invited to the rectorship of St. Matthew's Church, Wilton, Conn., and began his work there immediately. He was ordained priest, Sept. 12, 1862. He accepted the rectorship of Trinity Church, Hartford, Conn., Nov. 16, 1863. He became rector of St. Peter's Church, Pittsburgh, at Easter, 1865, and resigned at Easter, 1868, on account of the ill health of his family. Soon afterwards, he accepted a call to St. James's Church, Birmingham, Conn. During his residence in the diocese of Pittsburgh, he was a member of the standing committee, and was also deputy elect to the General Convention. Two children are living: Henry Riley, born June 16, 1862; William Bostwick, born Jan. 29, 1864. A daughter, Theodora, was born Jan. 11, 1866, but died Feb. 24 of the same year. He resigned St. James's Church, Birmingham, Conn., in December, 1869, and accepted a call to Yonkers, N. Y. From that place he removed to Syracuse, N. Y., in March, 1871, and took charge of St. Paul's Church.

Here, on the 21st November, 1872, he was suddenly stricken down by apoplexy. A volume of sermons, to which is prefixed a memorial address by Bishop Huntington, was published soon after his death. His son Henry is a successful teacher and composer of music, while the younger son, William, was, in 1885, an undergraduate of Syracuse University.

* ROBERT BRUCE GELSTON.—Born in Baltimore, Md., Nov. 17, 1837; son of Hugh and Rebecca (Durham) Gelston. Soon after leaving Cambridge, he entered the law office of his brother-in-law, Hon. Isaac D. Jones, of Princess Anne, on the eastern shore of Maryland. Two years or more spent there enabled him to pass a successful examination, and he was admitted to the bar, Dec. 5, 1861. In the winter of 1862–63, he was very much troubled by asthma, and only recovered to be prostrated by intense neuralgia. All that the highest medical skill and the attentive nursing of a beloved mother and sister could do was unavailing to relieve the violent headache from which he suffered almost constantly. His sight became seriously impaired by the progress of the disease. In the summer of 1865, he grew better, and, with his mother, visited Sharon and Saratoga Springs; but the respite was short, the acute pain returned, and after a few months he sank under the disease. He died in Baltimore, Jan. 3, 1866.

HORATIO JAMES GILBERT.—Born in Taunton, July 3, 1837; son of Horatio and Cordelia E. (Perry) Gilbert. In December, 1858, he entered the counting-room of Messrs. Morton Grinnell & Co., Park Place, New York, where he remained until 1862, when he came to Boston, and entered the hardware business. In the spring of 1867, he made a short visit to Europe, and also in 1877. Became a member of the firm of Dodge, Gilbert & Co., from which he retired in March, 1883. He married, June 9, 1879, Ellen ~~L. R.~~ Buttrick.

J.

Children : Helen Cordelia, born May 26, 1880 ; Margaret, born Feb. 19, 1883, died March 13, 1883 ; Horatio, born March 26, 1885 ; and Charles Theodore, born Aug. 2, 1887. Address, Milton, Mass.

* OZIAS GOODWIN.— Born in Boston, Sept. 30, 1837 ; son of Ozias and Lucy N. (Chapman) Goodwin. After graduation, he entered the law office of J. A. Loring, Esq., Boston. In August, 1862, he was appointed second lieutenant in the Second Massachusetts Regiment ; but owing to the deaths of his father and brother (Captain Goodwin, killed at the battle of Cedar Mountain), he was forced to decline the commission. In November of the same year, he sailed for Europe, returning in September, 1864. He sailed again in April, 1865, and returned in September. He sailed for the third time in December, 1865, and returned in September, 1866. From that time he resided in Boston till his death, Jan. 17, 1878.

WILLIAM GILCHRIST GORDON.— Born in New Bedford, Nov. 16, 1836 ; son of William A. and Maria (Williams) Gordon. In September, 1858, he began teaching as an assistant in the Taunton High School, and in February, 1859, was appointed principal of the Bristol Academy in the same place. He resigned this position in February, 1864, and removed to New Bedford, where he began the study of medicine with his father. In the spring of 1865, he taught in the New Bedford High School. He removed to Springfield, Mass., and opened a school for girls, in September of that year. He enlarged his school, and made arrangements for taking boys as well as girls about a year afterwards. During his residence in Taunton, he was an officer of various town libraries, etc., and while he lived in Springfield, was secretary of the Scientific Association there, and an active member of the Hampden County Teachers' Association, before which he read a paper on "School Discipline," in June, 1867. He was married May 11, 1861, in Taunton, to Sarah Otis, daughter of Otis and Ann B. Storrs, of Taunton. He has had children : Mabel, born Feb. 19, 1865 ; Helen, born June 22, 1867 ; William Alexander, born July 28, 1871. A daughter, Alice, was born Feb. 17, 1869, and died July 26, of the same year. He continued his school in Springfield, Mass., until the summer of 1871. In October of that year, he sailed for Europe with his family and a few pupils, and resided in Leipsic and Dresden. He returned to this country in March, 1873, to take charge of the opening and working of a sandstone quarry in Nova Scotia. He was engaged in this work two years, spending each winter in New Bedford. In April, 1875, he removed to Iowa, and opened a private school for boys and girls in Burlington, which was successful. He was offered the Latin professorship in Griswold College, Iowa, in July, 1877, but declined it. He resides at No. 816 Warren Street, Burlington, Iowa. His daughter Mabel was married to Mr. Frank Ashley Millard, Sept. 21, 1887. In November, 1884, he became assistant auditor of the treasury in the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company at Chicago, which position he still holds. Address, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad, Treasurer's office, Chicago, Ill.

SAMUEL SWETT GREEN. — Born in Worcester, Feb. 20, 1837 ; son of James and Elizabeth (Swett) Green. After graduation, he returned to his home in Worcester, where ill health prevented him from undertaking work of any kind. In June, 1859, he sailed for Smyrna and Constantinople in the bark Race Horse, returning in November. In September, 1860, he entered the Cambridge Divinity School, but ill health forced him to leave at the end of the second month. He returned to the school in September, 1861, and was graduated in July, 1864. After preaching a few times, he gave up the ministry on account of his health, and in December, 1864, went into the Mechanics' Bank, Worcester, as book-keeper. He was made teller in the Worcester National Bank, Aug. 15, 1865, and resigned his place May 22, 1868. He was elected a member of the board of directors of the Worcester Free Public Library, Jan. 1, 1867, and in April of the same year was chosen treasurer of the Worcester Lyceum and Natural History Association. He took his degree of A. M. at the Commencement of 1870. In January, 1871, he was chosen librarian of the Free Public Library of Worcester, Mass., which position he still holds. He published, in 1876, an historical and descriptive account of the library, and, in the same year, a pamphlet entitled "The Desirableness of establishing Personal Intercourse and Relations between Librarians and Readers in Popular Libraries." This was an essay read at the Conference of Librarians, held in Philadelphia, October, 1876. In 1877, he visited England as a delegate to the International Conference of Librarians, held in London, Oct. 2-5. He was a member of the council of this conference. He is one of the Executive Committee of the American Library Association, and was a member of the committee chosen by the overseers to visit the library of Harvard College. His health has been good for the last fifteen years, during which time he has been engaged in forming and carrying out plans to improve methods of administration in public libraries, and particularly in demonstrating the fact that it is possible to build up a very large popular use of libraries for purposes of reference and study; on which and kindred subjects he has published many pamphlets, books, and newspaper articles, and delivered several addresses. It has been gratifying to find that very important results have followed from these labors in different portions of the United States and of Great Britain. Attention has also been called to them in an official report of the Prefecture of the Seine, France. A portion of almost every day has been devoted by him, since leaving the Divinity

School, to study of the special subjects in which he became interested in the Divinity School, or to historical investigation and reading. Since Oct. 15, 1879, has been chairman of American Library Association's Committee on Finance. June 28, 1877, chosen honorary member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, Alpha Chapter of Massachusetts. July, 1878, chosen an honorary member of the Library Association of the United Kingdom. May 8, 1879, elected a fellow of the Royal Historical Society of Great Britain. April 28, 1880, elected a member of the American Antiquarian Society. Oct. 12, 1882, made a trustee of Leicester Academy. Member of the Committee of the Education Department of the American Social Science Association since September, 1880. Chosen a member of the Council of the American Antiquarian Society in October, 1883; and a member of the American Historical Association in October, 1884. In June, 1886, chosen first president of the Worcester High School Association, and president of the Worcester Indian Association. In 1886, appointed lecturer on public libraries as popular educational institutions, in the School of Library Economy connected with Columbia College, New York City, and has delivered lectures in 1887 and 1888. In 1887, chosen vice-president of the Worcester Art Society. In September, 1887, chosen first vice-president of the American Library Association. Address, Worcester, Mass.

ALFRED STEDMAN HARTWELL. — Born in West Dedham, June 11, 1836; son of Stedman and Rebecca D. (Perry) Hartwell. After graduation, he was tutor in the Washington University of St. Louis until May, 1861, when he enlisted as corporal in Company K, Third Regiment, Missouri Reserve Corps. At the expiration of his three-months term of service, he came to Cambridge, and entered the Harvard Law School. He was appointed first lieutenant in the Forty-fourth Massachusetts, Aug. 22, 1862. This was a nine-months regiment, and served in North Carolina. He was commissioned captain in the Fifty-fourth Massachusetts, March 16, 1863, and lieutenant-colonel in the Fifty-fifth Massachusetts, May 30. With this regiment he went to South Carolina, and was commissioned its colonel, Nov. 3, 1863. He was brevetted brigadier-general United States Volunteers, Dec. 30, 1864, for good conduct in battle of Honey Hill, S. C. He served in that State and in Florida, and after General Lee's surrender, was placed in command of one of the interior districts of South Carolina. He was mustered out of service, April 30, 1866. During the next summer, he was engaged in planting cotton on Edisto Island ; but in September, he returned to Cambridge, accepted a proctorship in the college, and re-entered the Law School. He was a member of the State Legislature from Natick in 1866-67. He was admitted to the bar, Feb. 18, 1867, and opened an office in Boston, in Court Square, removing, in the spring of 1868, to No. 15 Pemberton Square. He accepted the position of first associate justice of the Supreme Court of the Hawaiian Islands in June, 1868, which position he held for several years, and on his retiring from the bench, became Attorney-General, which office he held till July, 1878, after which time he practised law in Honolulu. Spent six months in California in 1883, and, Sept. 1, 1885, brought his family to his old home in South Natick, Mass., and stayed in Boston and vicinity for two years, returning to Honolulu in November, 1887, where he is again in his former home and law offices, and full of law work. He married, Jan. 10, 1872, Charlotte Smith, of Kolon, daughter of Dr. James W. Smith, and has children : Mabel, Edith, Madeline, Charlotte, Juliette, Charles, Bernica, and Dorothy. His address is Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands.

ALFRED HOUSTON HAVEN. — Born in Portsmouth, N.H., April 26, 1836; son of Alfred Woodward and Margaret (Houston) Haven. He left college at the end of the Junior year, but received his degree as a member of our class in 1867, and his Master's degree in 1870. In March, 1858, he began the study of medicine at the Harvard Medical School, where he received the degree of M. D. in July, 1861. In February, 1862, he entered the United States service as acting assistant surgeon, and was assigned to duty in hospitals at Washington. In July, 1862, he was appointed surgeon in charge of Judiciary Square General Hospital, in Washington. In 1863, he was appointed post surgeon at Artillery Camp Marshall, Washington; and in January, 1864, surgeon in charge of one the general hospitals of the Second Division, at Alexandria, Va. He was appointed pathologist of Fairfax Seminary General Hospital, near Alexandria (1,500 patients), in 1864. At various times he was a member of boards of examination for the Invalid Corps and for discharge from the army. By the Secretary of War he was commissioned assistant surgeon of the Thirty-fifth Regiment United States Colored Troops, in August, 1865. He served in and near Charleston, and was also in charge of the hospital at Summerville, S C., until June, 1866, when the regiment was mustered out. He was in the United States service nearly four years and a half. After leaving the army, he practised his profession in New York City. In 1871, he was appointed by the Commissioners of Charities of New York, physician in charge of one of the children's hospitals on Randall's Island, East River, which position he resigned after a year's service. He has contributed articles to the medical journals of New York, and to various magazines. For several years he has lived in Malden, Mass. Letters addressed to him at Portsmouth, N. H., will be forwarded to him.

JOHN HOMANS. — Born in Boston, Nov. 26, 1836; son of John and Caroline (Walker) Homans. Immediately after graduation he began the study of medicine at the Harvard Medical School, and took his degree of M. D., March, 1862. For some time previous he had been one of the house surgeons at the Massachusetts General Hospital. He received a commission as assistant surgeon in the regular navy, Jan. 24, 1862, and was ordered to the Aroostook. This vessel served on the James River, and shared in the attack on Fort Darling, the battle of Malvern Hill, etc. Upon going to Washington for repairs, in September, Homans, weary of the monotony of the naval service, and disappointed in the amount of surgical practice, resigned; and, after passing the usual examination, was commissioned assistant surgeon in the army, Nov. 22, 1862. He was ordered to report to General Banks at New Orleans. During the summer and autumn of 1863, he was in charge of St. James's Hospital in that city. In March, 1864, he shared in the Red River expedition as assistant medical director, on the staff of General Banks, and during a portion of the time performed the duties of medical director, owing to the absence of that officer. In July, 1864, he came to Virginia with the Nineteenth Army Corps, and served in the Shenandoah Valley under General Sheridan as surgeon-in-chief of the Nineteenth Corps. He was placed on General Sheridan's staff as medical inspector of the middle division in November, and served in that capacity until his resignation, May 28, 1865. In August of that year, he sailed for Europe, and studied in Vienna, Paris, and London, returning in November, 1866, when he began to practise his profession in Boston. He is a member of the Society of Natural History, Boston Medical Association, Medical Benevolent Society, Boston Society for Medical Observation, etc., etc. He married, Dec. 4, 1872, Helen Amory, daughter of William Perkins, Esq., of Boston, and has six children: Robert, born Oct. 3, 1873; Katherine Amory, born Feb. 13, 1875; John Alden, born Sept. 2, 1877; Marian Jackson, born Aug. 21, 1881; Helen, born Jan. 26, 1884; and William Perkins, born Jan. 12, 1887. He continues to practise surgery in Boston; most of his work being in the line of abdominal surgery, a comparatively new branch of surgical practice. He has been surgeon to the Carney Hospital, to the Children's Hospital, to out-patients at the Massachusetts General Hospital, and visiting surgeon to the Massachusetts General Hospital; and is now surgeon to the Massachusetts General Hospital, consulting surgeon to the Children's Hospital, medical inspector of the Perkins Institution for the Blind, medical examiner of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, and University lecturer in the Harvard Medical School on ovarian tumors. He has a private hospital or nursing home at 15 Louisburg Square. He has published many articles on abdominal surgery in the British and American medical journals; and in 1887, a book entitled "Three hundred and eighty-four Laparotomies for Various Diseases." In the summer of 1887, went to Europe for a few weeks, and walked through Switzerland with his oldest son, Robert. Address, 161 Beacon Street, Boston.

* HOLLIS HUNNEWELL. — Born in Boston, Nov. 16, 1836; son of Horatio Hollis and Isabella Pratt (Welles) Hunnewell. After graduation, he went into the law office of E. S. Rand, Esq., Boston. In September, 1859, he went to Europe, and spent some time in Constantinople as attaché to the French embassy. He returned to this country in November, 1860, and entered the Harvard Law School. In 1861, he went into business with his father in Boston. He made another visit to Europe in 1866, sailing in March, and returning in November. He married, April 30, 1867, Louisa, daughter of Frederick Bronson, Esq., of New York. He had a son, Hollis Horatio, born Feb. 10, 1868; and a daughter, Charlotte Bronson, born Oct. 13, 1871. He continued to reside in Boston and Wellesley, and died in Wellesley, after a long illness, June 11, 1884.

WILLIAM ARTHUR KILBOURN. — Born in Groton, July 16, 1838; son of Jeremiah and Patty (Flint) Kilbourn. In September, 1858, he accepted the mastership of the High School in Framingham, and remained there until November, 1863, when he became principal of the Lancaster Academy. He married, April 7, 1862, Ellen Livingston, of Keene, N. H. He had two children by her: Robert Burrage, born April 29, 1863; Ellen Livingston, born Oct. 22, 1865. He was married, March 14, 1871, to Abby Fletcher, daughter of Jonas Goss, of Lancaster, and has by her, Martha, born Dec. 8, 1871; Elizabeth, born Dec. 28, 1874; Arthur Goss, born Aug. 19, 1876; Mary, born April 25, 1880; Alice, born Jan. 10, 1882; Annie, born Aug. 23, 1883; Ruth Burrage, born Feb. 23, 1888. He had also a son, William, born Aug. 14, 1873, who died Feb. 25, 1875. His oldest son and daughter are both married, and have each one child. He took his degree of A. M. in 1861. He served several years on the School Committee of Lancaster, and raised the academy there to a high grade of scholarship. He continued to be principal of the Lancaster Academy until it was merged into a town high school. Since 1874, he has been in charge of the Thayer farm at South Lancaster. Address, South Lancaster, Mass.

* EDWARD HARRINGTON KIMBALL. — Born in Bradford, Jan. 6, 1835; son of David C. Kimball. During the winter of 1858-59, he taught school in Newington, N. H. The next spring he began the study of law in the office of Jeremiah Russell, Esq., in Haverhill, Mass. He removed to Mississippi in October, 1859, to take charge of an academy in Brownsville. In July, 1861, he returned to his home in Bradford, and entered the office of J. J. Marsh, Esq., of Haverhill. In the spring of 1862, he went to British Columbia, where he resided for many years, and was accidentally killed there at Barkerville, in February, 1874. He was overwhelmed by an avalanche of snow, and thirty men were thirty-eight hours in digging through the snow to find his body. He had obtained the respect and love of a large number of the people of Columbia.

* ANSEL LAMSON.—Born in Lunenburg, Vt., July 29, 1834; son of Reuben and Abigail (Goodall) Lamson. After graduation, he entered the Harvard Law School, but did not remain long. He took the degree of A. M. in 1867. He went to the South in 1859, and taught school in Mobile, Ala., until the breaking out of the war. He returned North in 1861, and entered the General Theological Seminary (Episcopal) in New York. He was graduated, but was never ordained to the ministry. He taught in New York while in the seminary, and afterward in the Adelphi Institute, Brooklyn. He suffered from some trouble with his knee joint, for treatment of which he went to St. Luke's Hospital, where an operation was performed, from the effects of which he died April 12, 1868. He was never married.

CHARLES HENRY LEAROYD.—Born in Danvers, June 7, 1834; son of John Andrew and Sarah (Silvester) Learoyd. The first year after graduation he spent in Cincinnati, as tutor in the family of Larz Anderson, Esq. He entered Andover Theological Seminary in December, 1859. He was ordained deacon in the Episcopal Church, July 10, 1862, and was assistant to the Rev. Dr. Huntington, of Emmanuel Church, Boston, during the next winter. In June, 1863, he received a call to the rectorship of Grace Church, Medford, and after being admitted to priest's orders in Andover, June 24, took charge of his parish, Sept. 6, 1863. He was married in Calvary Church, Danvers, Oct. 14, 1863, to Susan Ellen, daughter of Frederick and Almira (Putnam) Perley, of Danvers. He spent a year in Europe, sailing in September, 1865, and returning to the charge of his parish in October, 1866. He took his degree of A. M. at the Commencement of 1871. Since Easter, 1872, he has been rector of St. Thomas's Church, Taunton, Mass. He is treasurer of the Diocese of Massachusetts, member of the Board of Missions, etc. A son, named John, was born July 13, 1867, but lived only five days. A son, Manton, born June 4, 1871, died Feb. 7 of the following year. A son, Arthur Sowdon, was born Aug. 14, 1873, and a daughter, Grace, Dec. 13, 1874. Another son, Charles Henry, was born April 30, 1878. He spent the summer of 1882 in Europe. He is a member of the Old Colony Historical Society, and on the executive committee of the Clerical Union of the Diocese of Massachusetts. He delivered an historical address (printed by request) before the Southern Convocation of Massachusetts at its two hundredth meeting, Jan. 26, 1887. Address, Taunton, Mass.

* JAMES JACKSON LOWELL. — Born in Cambridge, Oct. 15, 1837; son of Charles Russell and Anna Cabot (Jackson) Lowell. After graduation, he chose the law for a profession. He pursued his studies at home, and was engaged in teaching private pupils until September, 1860, when he entered the Law School. In June, 1861, with his cousin, William L. Putnam, he commenced to enlist men for a company of the Nineteenth Massachusetts Regiment, to be commanded by Mr. Schmitt, the instructor in German in the college. Orders were soon given transferring the company to the Twentieth Massachusetts Regiment, and Lowell was commissioned first lieutenant in that regiment, July 10, 1861. He was in camp at Poolesville, Md., until the 20th of the following October. In the battle of Ball's Bluff, Oct. 21, he was seriously wounded in the thigh. After recovering from his wound at home, he returned to his company, of which he now took command, in February, 1862. In March, his regiment was transferred to the Peninsula, and took part in McClellan's advance upon Richmond. In the battle of Glendale, on the afternoon of June 30, 1862, he fell, mortally wounded, having been shot in the abdomen while dressing the line of his company. He lingered for several days, enduring his pain and the approach of death with unwavering courage and resignation, and died on July 4. The place of his death was Nelson's or Frazier's Farm, and his remains were buried there by a private of his regiment. They were removed from this resting-place by affectionate hands, in the autumn of 1865, and placed beside those of his brother, General Charles R. Lowell, in Mount Auburn. Lowell was rarely gifted in intellectual and moral qualities. He stood easily first among us in scholarship, and his purity and nobility of character, his earnestness, his kindness, made us all love and admire him. A brilliant career of usefulness and honor in civil life seemed to lie open before him when his patriotism and love of freedom led him to encounter the hardships and dangers of war in the service of his country. His memory will always be cherished among us with pride and affection. His short life was filled with high purposes and noble achievements, and was fitly closed by his willing sacrifice of it for the great cause to which he had devoted it. He said, among his last words, that "he felt that his death was altogether right, and hoped they would think so at home."

THATCHER MAGOUN.—Born in Medford, Sept. 5, 1838; son of Thatcher and Martha (Tufts) Magoun. Immediately after graduation he went into the shipping business in the office of his father, in Boston. He was admitted a partner, and the style of the firm changed to Magoun & Sons, Jan. 1, 1866. He married, Jan. 4, 1860, Harriot Lombard, daughter of the late Henry A. Norcross, of New Orleans. His first child, a son, was born Feb. 16, 1861, and named Thatcher, after his father and grandfather. To this boy was duly presented the cradle voted by the class to the first of the new generation. His second son, Henry Norcross, was born Oct. 23, 1862; his daughter, Harriot Martha, was born Feb. 3, 1866; son, Arthur, born Jan. 10, 1869; daughter, Esther Mary, born Nov. 17, 1879. Lived in Medford for about twenty years, and then moved to North Pembroke, where he has a large farm. When he moved, he resigned his trusteeship in the Medford Savings Bank, which he had held for about fifteen years and from its inception. He has been a director in the China Mutual Insurance Company of Boston. In 1876, he was appointed representative of the "United States Lloyds," with John A. Conkey, under the firm name of Magoun & Conkey. The firm was dissolved by mutual consent, in 1877, and he continued the agency alone. He still continues in the insurance business in Boston. Address, 53 State Street, Boston.

* EDWARD BROMFIELD MASON. — Born in Boston, July 2, 1837; son of William Powell and Hannah (Rogers) Mason. After graduation, he began the study of medicine in Cambridge with Professor Wyman and Dr. Nichols; he also attended the lectures of the Harvard Medical School, from which he received the degree of M. D. in July, 1861. Naturally fond of an out-door life and adventure, he was anxious to join the cavalry service at the beginning of the war, but yielded to the wishes of his family, and applied for the position of surgeon. He was commissioned assistant surgeon in the Fourteenth Massachusetts, March 1, 1862, and at once joined his regiment, then on the Potomac. He was taken prisoner in August, near Fairfax Court House, but soon released. The regiment (heavy artillery) was mainly employed in garrison duty, and Mason chafed much at the dull routine of his life. In December, however, he was ordered to serve as medical director on the staff of Colonel Cogswell, acting brigadier-general; but in January, 1863, he was forced to return to his inactive life in garrison. He applied for a transfer as assistant surgeon to some regiment in the field; but this was found to be against the regulations, and he finally obtained a new commission as second lieutenant in the Second Massachusetts Cavalry, June 4, 1863. He returned home to join his new regiment, which was still in camp at Readville. Here, at parade one evening, his horse, an undisciplined one, reared and fell backwards upon him, inflicting a severe injury, which, after a fortnight of severe suffering, proved fatal. He died at the house of his sister, Mrs. Cabot, at Readville, Sept. 14, 1863.

* JAMES MAY. — Born in Petersburg, Va., April 11, 1837; son of David and Maria Ward (Pegram) May. After graduation, he studied law with his father in Petersburg, Va., and was living there at the commencement of the war, when he enlisted as a private in the Petersburg City Guards, which afterwards became a part of the Fourth Battalion of Virginia troops in the Confederate Army. He was made color-bearer and second lieutenant, afterwards first lieutenant, Company A, Twelfth Virginia Regiment, and was promoted to be captain. At the battle of Malvern Hill he was severely wounded by a sword-thrust in the arm, but remained with his company, and at the second battle of Manassas he was very badly wounded in the thigh, so that after the wound healed he was obliged to use crutches. He was then assigned to duty as an assistant to the provost marshal of Petersburg, and after the war was closed was assistant clerk of the court at Petersburg, and subsequently assistant freight agent of the Atlantic, Mississippi and Ohio Railroad Company. He lived with his sister and her family, and died in Petersburg, Va., in June, 1876. His brother, David Fitzhugh May, wrote to the Secretary that James was the last of four brothers who served in the Confederate Army. Three of them were killed in battle, and James was made a cripple for life. All the brothers served in Mahone's brigade, Longstreet's corps, and A. P. Hill's division.

WILLIAM FREDERICK MILTON. — Born in Boston, Feb. 16, 1837; son of William Hamett and Amelia (Thibault) Milton. In November, 1858, he went to Manchester, England, and entered the counting-room of Messrs. Firth, Slingsby & Co. After spending a year there, he entered a branch firm at Huddersfield, in December, 1859. He visited his home in the summer of 1860. In September of that year he returned to England, and went into the firm of Messrs. Firth, Booth & Co., in Bradford. He returned to this country in May, 1861, and, after spending a short time with his family, accepted a commission as second lieutenant in the Twentieth Massachusetts Regiment, July 10, 1861. He was promoted to first lieutenant, Oct. 12, 1861, and assigned to the staff of General Dana. He was commissioned captain, July 5, 1863. He served constantly upon the staff until, with his regiment, he was mustered out of service, July 26, 1864. He removed from Boston to New York, and became a partner in the new firm of Messrs. Wetmore, Cryder & Co., June 4, 1866. About a year afterwards, he sailed to China on business, where he remained until June, 1870, with the exception of a two-months' visit to America in the spring of 1869. He retired from the firm of Wetmore, Cryder & Co. in June, 1871, but continued in the same business under the firm name of W. F. Milton & Co. He was married, March 22, 1873, to Anna Ridgeway, daughter of the late Daniel L. Miller, Jr., of Philadelphia, and started at once for a trip round the world, which lasted a year. He visited China again in 1877. In 1880, he retired from active business, and purchased "Unkamet Farm," in Pittsfield, Mass., and has since devoted his attention to agriculture. Address, Coltsville, Berkshire County, Mass.

SETH MILLER MURDOCK. — Born in Boston, Aug. 6, 1836; son of Warren and Abigail Thompson (Miller) Murdock. After graduation, he began the study of the law in the office of Messrs. Bonney, Titus & Roe, New York. He also attended the lectures of Columbia College, from which he received the degree of LL. B. in May, 1861. He took his degree of A. M. at the Commencement of that year, and was admitted to the New York bar in July. He practised his profession in the firm with which he had studied, the style of which was changed in 1863 to Bonney, Roe & Murdock. On Jan. 1, 1867, he withdrew from the practice of the law, and became engaged in the iron business. He was agent for the Peekskill Iron Company. Address, 33 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

* JOHN DOLE MYRICK. — Born in Augusta, Me., Aug. 2, 1835; son of Lot and Elizabeth C. (Dole) Myrick. A few months after graduation, he began the study of the law in the office of the Hon. R. H. Vose, in Augusta, Me. In September, 1860, he entered the Harvard Law School. He was on the point of admission to the Suffolk bar in September, 1861, when he was called home to take a commission as second lieutenant in the First Maine Cavalry. This commission is dated Nov. 2, 1861. With his regiment he had a share in the battles of 1862, Cedar Mountain, Bull Run, and Fredericksburg. He was promoted to first lieutenant, Dec. 7, 1862; and to captain, Jan. 4, 1863. He led his company with credit on Stoneman's expedition, and shared all the dangers of the famous Dahlgren raid. He had a horse shot under him at Deep Bottom, Aug. 16, 1864. About this time he was stricken down by malarious fever, and forced to return home. But as soon as possible he rejoined his regiment, and after the battle at Dinwiddie Court House, he was brevetted major for meritorious services. At the close of the war he was ordered to Augusta in command of three hundred and fifty men of his regiment, and upon his return to Virginia, was mustered out of service, Aug. 14, 1865. He resumed the study of the law, and was admitted to the Kennebec bar in October, 1865. He applied for and received a commission as first lieutenant, Tenth Cavalry (regulars), March 7, 1867. He was married, April 24, to Pauline Jones, daughter of Eben and Eliza (Williams) Fuller, of Augusta, Me. He joined his regiment at Fort Leavenworth, in May, and served on the plains during the summer. The winter was passed at Fort Riley. The regiment took the field again in April, 1868. He was ordered in June to Bangor, Me., to give testimony in the case of the government against the postmaster at Houlton. He was brevetted captain, United States Army, for gallantry at Dinwiddie Court House, March 21, 1865, to date from March 7, 1867. After serving with his regiment in the Western Territories five years, he resigned his commission, May 17, 1872, and returned to New England. He settled in Fitchburg, Mass., and commenced business as a druggist and apothecary, in March, 1873. He removed to Augusta, Me., Jan. 1, 1876, and carried on the same business there, being the head of the "Fuller Drug Store," established in 1819. He has contributed a number of articles on Rebellion matters to newspapers. He delivered the oration at the first annual reunion of the First Maine Cavalry Regiment, held at Augusta, in September, 1872. He also made addresses at the reunions in Bangor, in 1873, Portland, in 1874, and read a poem at that held in Rockland, in 1875. He delivered the orations on Memorial Day, at Calais, in 1874, at Augusta, in 1875, at Bridgeton, in 1876, at Gardiner, in 1877, and at West Waterville, in 1878. He also wrote a lecture, entitled "A Trooper's Ride with Sheridan in Lee's Last Campaign." He was the Department Commander of the Maine Grand Army of the Republic in 1878. He had one child, a daughter, named Eliza Williams, born Sept. 29, 1868. He was appointed State Librarian by Governor Connor, serving until the end of Governor Davis's administration. He continued in the drug business until a short time before his death, and at the time of his death was chief clerk in the Pension Office in Augusta, and Master of the Augusta Lodge of Masons. He died suddenly after only a week's illness, of erysipelas of the brain, at Augusta, Me., Dec. 27, 1882.

GEORGE WASHINGTON COPP NOBLE. — Born in Somersworth, N. H., Nov. 1, 1836; son of Mark and Mary C. (Copp) Noble. Immediately after graduation, he accepted an ushership in the Public Latin School, Boston, and retained it until September, 1860, when he entered the Harvard Law School, accepting at the same time a proctorship in the college. In March, 1861, he was appointed tutor of Latin in Harvard College. He was married in New York, May 28, 1861, to Laura, daughter of the Rev. Dr. Francis L. Hawks. He took his degree of A. M. in 1863. In January, 1864, he was offered the position of Latin professor in Washington University, St. Louis, and removed thither in July. He resigned his professorship in June, 1866, and in October, of the same year, opened a school for boys at No. 2½ Pemberton Square, Boston. He removed his school to No. 40 Winter Street in May, 1867, and to 174 Tremont Street in September, 1884. In 1868, he was elected a member of the Board of Overseers of Harvard College, and was re-elected for a term of six years, in 1872. He resides in Cambridge, and has children: Katherine Nash, born Nov. 6, 1862; John, born May 5, 1864; Francis Lister Hawks, born Dec. 22, 1866. His daughter, Josephine Hawks, born Jan. 8, 1869, died Jan. 13, 1874. Another daughter, Laura Hawks, born Oct. 9, 1872, died Jan. 15, 1874. A third son, George Washington Copp, was born Dec. 26, 1874. His eldest son graduated at Harvard in 1885, and his second son is in the class of 1888. His daughter, Katherine, was married in June, 1887, to James J. Greenough, of Cambridge. His address is No. 21 Concord Avenue, Cambridge, Mass.

* FREDERICK MALCOLM NORCROSS.—Born in Bangor, Me., Sept. 18, 1836. After graduation, he spent three years in the study of the law in the office of Messrs. Morse & Marshall, Lowell. He did not practise his profession, having become interested in mechanical inventions. He was commissioned second lieutenant in the Thirtieth Massachusetts Regiment, Feb. 20, 1862. The regiment served in Louisiana, and in General Butler's official report of the battle of Baton Rouge, Norcross is twice mentioned: "specially commended for leaving the hospital to fight"; and for "daring courage in the field as acting aid to Colonel Dudley." He was promoted to first lieutenant, Aug. 19, 1862. He was wounded at Port Hudson, May 21, 1863, and came home to recover from his injuries. He was promoted to captain, and assistant quartermaster United States Volunteers, Feb. 29, 1864, and was ordered to report to General Canby at Vicksburg. He was mustered out March 13, 1866. After the close of the war, he lived in New York, engaged in various business enterprises, and was married. He died in New York, Dec. 24, 1887.

JOHN BUTTRICK NOYES.—Born in Petersham, March 2, 1838; son of George R. and Eliza W. (Buttrick) Noyes. After several futile attempts to secure some business occupation, he entered the law office of Messrs. C. T. & T. H. Russell, Boston, Dec. 20, 1858. He entered the Harvard Law School in September, 1859. In May, 1860, he entered the office of Judge Richardson, Boston. Not very long afterwards, he decided to abandon the idea of practising law, and in October, 1860, he entered the bookstore of A. K. Loring, as clerk. He enlisted as private in the Fourth Battalion of Rifles, May 13, 1861, and did garrison duty at Fort Independence till the middle of July. After an ineffectual attempt to recruit a company, he rejoined the Rifles, now a part of the Thirteenth Massachusetts, July 28, 1861, and went into active service immediately. The regiment was at

Winchester, Cedar Mountain, Thoroughfare Gap, and Bull Run. At this last battle, Aug. 30, 1862, he was slightly wounded. The regiment was engaged at Chantilly, South Mountain, and Antietam. Here Noyes was again wounded, and was not able to rejoin his regiment until February, 1863. He was detailed as clerk at the provost marshal general's office, March 14, and remained on duty there until towards the last of April. He was commissioned second lieutenant in the Twenty-eighth Massachusetts, April 6, 1863, and joined his regiment on the battle-field of Chancellorsville, May 4. He was actively engaged while in command of his company on the second and third days at the battle of Gettysburg, also at Auburn and Bristow Station, Oct. 14, 1863; and at Mine Run, Nov. 29, 1863. Together with his regiment, attached to the Second Brigade, First Division, Second Corps, he crossed the Rapidan, May 4, 1864, and was engaged in the fierce contest in the Wilderness, May 5, 6, and 7; at Todd's Tavern, May 8, and the Po River, May 10. At daylight, May 12, was in the memorable charge of Hancock at Spottsylvania, and assisted in heaving the captured cannon over the salient. Was also in the sanguinary charge at Spottsylvania (second), May 18. He commanded his regiment at Cold Harbor, June 3, and in the gallant charges at Petersburg, June 16 and 18; was also in the disastrous fight at Petersburg, June 22, when his conduct was commended on the field by Generals Miles and Barlow. Shortly after the battle, he was assigned, by order of General Barlow, as assistant inspector-general, Third Brigade, and in that capacity was engaged at Deep Bottom and at Reams' Station, Sept. 25, 1864. Shortly after, he was appointed aid to General Macy, commanding a brigade in the Second Division, Second Corps, with whom he served until Dec. 13, when he returned to Massachusetts to be mustered out, Dec. 19, 1864. He was commissioned first lieutenant, May 12, 1863, and captain, May 6, 1864. Brevetted major United States Volunteers, March 13, 1865, and lieutenant-colonel and colonel United States Volunteers, "for meritorious conduct while in command of regiment before Petersburg, Va., in the engagements of June 16 and 20, 1864." After leaving the army, he remained at home until May 24, 1865, when he became assistant librarian of the Mercantile Library at Brooklyn, N. Y. On July 5, 1865, he entered the employ of Messrs. Woodruff & Robinson, dealers in fish and salt, in New York City, and continued with their successors, J. P. & G. C. Robinson, in the storage department of the business, until April 15, 1885, when he entered the employ of William Beard & Co., proprietors of the Erie Basin Warehouses. These warehouses having been leased to the Empire Warehouse Company, he entered the service of that corporation, March 12, 1888. He resides at 223 DeGraw Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Has resided since 1865 in Brooklyn, and has never married. Member of "Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States." Joint author, with Mr. C. S. Peirce, of article on "Shakespearian Pronunciation" in "North American Review" for April, 1864, acknowledged by A. J. Ellis to be the first and only serious treatment of the subject up to the time of the publication of his great work. Address, No. 5 Hanover Street, New York City.

JOHN GRAY PARK. — Born in Groton, Jan. 3, 1838; son of John G. and Maria (Thayer) Park. From graduation until February, 1862, he lived in Boston, and attended the lectures of the Harvard Medical School. In May, 1861, he was appointed one of the house physicians at the Massachusetts General Hospital. He was appointed acting assistant surgeon in the navy, Feb. 19, 1862, and ordered to the Victoria, on the coast of North Carolina. In April, 1864, he was ordered to the Mendota, a new steamer fitting out in New York. In the summer of this year, an attack of illness forced him to obtain leave of absence, which he spent at his home in Groton. In December, he was ordered to the West Gulf squadron. He was honorably discharged from the service, Nov. 6, 1865. He spent the next winter in study in Boston, and in March, 1866, received the degree of M. D. He began the practice of his profession in Worcester, June 19, 1866, and still continues to reside there, where he has been in charge of the Lunatic Hospital since 1872. He married, Oct. 22, 1872, Elizabeth B., daughter of the Hon. A. F. Lawrence, of Groton, Mass. He has one son, born Dec. 16, 1873. Spent the summer of 1881 in Europe. During this trip, he gave special attention to study of the methods used for the care and management of the insane in Great Britain. Address, Worcester, Mass.

SAMUEL PASCO. — Born in London, England, June 28, 1834; son of John and Amelia (Nash) Pasco. In January, 1859, he took charge of the Waukeenh Academy, Jefferson County, Fla., where the commencement of the war found him. He enlisted in the Third Florida Volunteers, Aug. 10, 1861. The regiment, after some little time, was ordered to join General Beauregard's army at Corinth, and was attached to General Bragg's army during his Kentucky campaign. He was frequently detailed as clerk at regimental and brigade headquarters, and at the adjutant-general's office. He was in the battle of Chickamauga, and at Mission Ridge, in November, 1863, was left on the field with his leg shattered by a minie-ball. He was a prisoner in different hospitals for nearly six months, and then sent to Camp Morton, Indiana. Here he remained until paroled in March, 1865, when he returned to Florida. He resumed his place in the academy, but having been elected clerk of the Circuit Court, he removed to Monticello, the county town, in January, 1866. He was then appointed clerk of the Criminal Court, and of the town council. He performed much of the office work by deputy, and gave his own time to the study of the law.

He was admitted to the bar, Oct. 5, 1868, and went into partnership with his instructor, Mr. Dilworth, who died in September, 1869, and left Pasco a large practice, almost all of which he was able to retain. He formed a new partnership in the spring of 1877, and the firm name was Pasco & Palmer. He was a member of the town council for nine years, declining a re-election in 1878. For some years he has been a trustee of Jefferson Academy. He is a prominent Mason, and was for three years Grand Master of the Florida Grand Lodge. In the political campaign of 1876, he was chairman of the State Executive Committee of the Democratic party. He has made many Masonic and political addresses, but published nothing of permanent value. He received the degree of A. M. in 1872. He married, Oct. 28, 1869, Jessie Denham, daughter of William Denham, Esq., of Monticello. Their children are: Elizabeth, born Aug. 19, 1870; Emily, born June 18, 1873; William Denham, born Dec. 14, 1875; Samuel, born March 21, 1878; John, born Sept. 20, 1880; and James Denham, born Feb. 25, 1883. He has practised law in Monticello without a partner since 1881. Has been chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee since 1876, and since 1880 a member of Democratic National Committee. Was Presidential elector at large in 1880, and led the ticket. At the State Convention, in June, 1884, was a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, and at first received a plurality of votes, but, to prevent a deadlock, withdrew his name, and on his motion General Perry was nominated unanimously. Served as a member of a State Board of Education, 1879-1880. Was nominated by both Democrats and Republicans a member of the Constitutional Convention, held in June, 1885, and was elected without an opponent, and on its organization was elected its president by a unanimous vote. In December, 1886, elected representative from Jefferson County to the House of Representatives of Florida, first held under the new constitution, and on its organization, April 5, 1887, was elected its Speaker. He was nominated for United States senator by the Democrats by acclamation for the term which began in 1887, and May 19 was elected by a vote of eighty-four to seventeen, and took his seat as a senator from Florida at the opening of the Fiftieth Congress. His home and family are still in Monticello. Address, Monticello, Jefferson County, Fla.

* HENRY LYMAN PATTEN. — Born in Kingston, N. H., April 4, 1836; son of Colcord and Maria (Fletcher) Patten. After graduating with high honors, Patten spent a year as tutor in the Free Academy at Utica, N. Y., and in November, 1859, went to Montgomery, near Savannah, Ga., as private tutor. In September, 1860, he accepted an assistant professorship in the academical department of Washington University, St. Louis. He resigned this position, after holding it for a year, and entered the Law School at Cambridge in September, 1861, and was appointed at the same time a proctor in the college. Immediately after the battle of Ball's Bluff, in October, 1861, he applied for a commission, and on Nov. 25 was commissioned second lieutenant in the Twentieth Massachusetts Regiment, in place of William L. Putnam, and in the same company with Lowell. He continued to serve in this regiment, and took part in all its battles, long marches, and severe duties, until his death. In the summer of 1862, his regiment was actively engaged in the Peninsular campaign, and in the battle of Glendale both Lowell and Patten were wounded — Lowell mortally, and Patten with a deep flesh wound in the leg. He rejoined his regiment, after a brief furlough, in season to take part in its next battle, at Chantilly, and he was in the thickest of the fight in the battles of South Mountain and Antietam. He was commissioned first lieutenant, Oct. 1, 1862. He was engaged in the assaults upon the heights of Fredericksburg, under Burnside and under Hooker, and at the battle of Gettysburg behaved with distinguished gallantry, and was wounded in the leg and in the hand. The middle finger of his right hand was amputated, and he was furloughed for a short time. He now received a commission as captain, dated May 1, 1863. Returning to duty, he went through the fatiguing campaign of Mine Run. He was shot through the hand in the battle of the Wilderness, May 6, 1864, and, Colonel Macy having been disabled, and Major Abbott killed, the command of the regiment devolved upon him. He was in command of the Twentieth at Spottsylvania, at North Anna, at Cold Harbor, and before Petersburg. In the attack upon the Weldon Railroad, June 22, by his coolness and strategical skill, and the courage and discipline of his men, an advancing rebel column, which had broken two divisions into confusion before it, was checked and stayed. His commission as major, which he received shortly before his death, was dated June 20, 1864. On Aug. 14, Colonel Macy resumed the command of the regiment. On Aug. 16, in the fight at Deep Bottom, Patten was wounded by a rifle-ball in the left knee. Amputation was performed, and he was removed to Turner's Lane Hospital in Philadelphia. He was tenderly cared for here, and endured his great sufferings with heroic fortitude, writing cheerfully and hopefully of his condition to his friends; but he had been so much weakened by fatigue, anxiety, and disease, that he could not recover. He died Sept. 10, 1864. His body was brought to Cambridge, where funeral services were performed in the college chapel, conducted by Presidents Walker and Hill, and Dr. Peabody, and a long procession of officers and students of the college, officers of his regiment and of other regiments, classmates and friends, followed it to Mount Auburn. The stone which marks his grave there was erected by his classmates. A commission as brigadier-general by brevet has been conferred upon Patten since his death, upon the recommendation of General Meade, for gallantry and good conduct at the battle of Deep Bottom.

* DANIEL CHAMBERLAIN PAYNE. — Born in Bangor, Me., Feb. 11, 1837; son of William and Martha L. (Chamberlain) Payne. In September, 1858, he went to Europe, intending to study architecture in Paris, but was taken sick with fever, and soon returned. In October, 1860, he started in a sailing vessel for Malta, and finally settled to study in Paris. In 1862, he became attached to the U. S. Legation at Madrid as assistant secretary. He retained this position till the summer of 1863, and for a time, in the absence of the Secretary of Legation, had charge of the office and current business of the Legation. He returned to Boston in August, 1863, and, in November, accepted a position on the staff of General William Dwight, then in New Orleans. In December, he was appointed first lieutenant in the United States colored troops. He was in the battle of Pleasant Hill, La., in April, 1864, and in Sheridan's army, in the Shenandoah Valley, in August. On June 15, 1865, he was brevetted a captain of volunteers "for gallantry and meritorious services at the battles of Sabine Cross Roads and Pleasant Hill," and on the same day he was further brevetted a major of volunteers "for gallantry and meritorious services at the battles of Opequod, Fisher's Hill, and Cedar Creek, Va." He was at home on a short furlough, in January, 1865. After leaving the army, he lived in Boston until April 11, 1866, when he sailed for Europe. He spent the winter of 1867-68 in Pau and Algiers, in ill health, and was in Florence in the spring. He died at Montreux, Switzerland, Sept. 28, 1868, of consumption.

* JOHN CHARLES PHILLIPS. — Born in Boston, Oct. 21, 1838; son of John C. and Harriet (Welch) Phillips. After graduation, he entered the counting-room of Messrs. R. C. Mackay & Son, Boston, where he remained until July 28, 1860, when he sailed for Calcutta, to take charge of a branch house there. He returned to Boston in July, 1862. In 1864, he made, a short visit to England and France. On July 1, 1865, he formed a copartnership with Mr. William Mackay, in New York, for the purpose of transacting a general commission business. The style of the firm was William Mackay & Co. Retired from business in 1873, having received a large property under the will of a cousin, William Phillips. He spent some time in Europe; and then resided in Boston, in winter, and in North Beverly, near Wenham Lake, in summer. He was married in London, Oct. 23, 1875, to Anna, daughter of Alanson Tucker, Esq., of Boston. His children are: John Charles, born Nov. 5, 1876; William, born May 30, 1878; Anna Tucker, born April 25, 1880; Martha Robeson, born Feb. 1, 1882; and George Wendell, born Nov. 22, 1883. He died of heart disease in Boston, March 1, 1885. He was a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, a director of the Boston and Albany Railroad, and of the National Union Bank, and one of the trustees, as well as a liberal benefactor of Phillips Exeter Academy. He made large gifts also to the Phillips Andover Academy, and to the Children's Hospital, in Boston, and was one of the managers of the Children's Hospital, the School for the Blind, and the Peabody Museum.

GEORGE EDWARD POND.—Born in Boston, March 11, 1837; son of Moses and Nancy (Adams) Pond. Immediately after graduation, he entered the Harvard Law School, from which he received the degree of LL. B. in July, 1860. For the next six months he was engaged in assisting Professor Parsons in preparing his Notes and Bills; and also wrote several articles for "Bouvier's Law Dictionary," and "Appleton's Cyclopædia." He entered the office of Messrs. Sohier & Dexter, Boston, March 1, 1861. He was admitted to the Suffolk bar, Jan. 7, 1862, and opened an office at No. 23, Niles's Block. In June and July, he performed guard duty at Fort Warren with the Cadets. In August, he recruited a company for the Forty-fifth Massachusetts, and was commissioned its second lieutenant, Aug. 27, and first lieutenant, Oct. 14, 1862. The regiment (nine-months men) served in North Carolina, and was in the battles of Kingston, Whitehall, and Goldsboro'. He was mustered out of service, July 21, 1863, and resumed the practice of his profession at No. 12 Niles's Block. In the spring of 1864, he removed to New York, and became one of the editors of the "Army and Navy Journal." Soon afterwards, he became a regular editorial contributor to the New York Times. In May, 1866, he resigned the editorship of the Journal, in order to write, jointly with Mr. Swinton, the "Decisive Battles of the War." In the autumn of 1866, he resumed the position of chief editorial writer in the Journal, which he still continues to hold, and also resumed his contributions to the New York Times. He married, in Brooklyn, May 29, 1866, Emiiy, daughter of Auguste and Louise Guerber, of Brooklyn, and has four children: Alice, Nelly, Isabel, and Ethel. From May, 1864, to 1866, he wrote nearly the whole of the editorial articles in the Journal, including the "Situation," and the criticism of the military operations. From November, 1866, to 1870, he wrote most of the leading articles. He has also written a great deal for the New York Times, in the "Minor Topics." He continued on the staff of the New York Times until the death of Mr. Raymond. In 1870, he was engaged by Mr. W. J. Swain, of Philadelphia, to take the editorship of the Public Record, a paper about to be established in that city. He remained editor of the Record until its owner sold it in 1877, when he returned to New York, and resumed his connection with the "Army and Navy Journal," and his editorial contributions to daily newspapers. In 1866, he wrote six of the twelve essays in William Swinton's "Decisive Battles of the War," and afterwards, jointly with Mr. Swinton, "The History of the Seventh Regiment, National Guard of New York." He has written much in the "Galaxy," "United States Service Magazine," "North American Review," "Nation," "Round Table," etc. In 1882, he wrote "The Shenandoah Valley in 1864," published by Charles Scribner's Sons as a volume of their "Campaigns of the Civil War." He lived in Brooklyn till the death of his wife, Jan. 14, 1880, and soon after removed to 345 West Twentieth Street, New York City, where he still resides. He is a member of the Authors' Club and of the Fellowcraft Club of that city. He writes, June 7, that his daughter, Alice, has just passed her last examination in her fourth year at Columbia College, and will graduate June 13, "the first of her sex to complete the regular A. B. course at that college." Address, "Army and Navy Journal" office, New York.

EDWARD GRIFFIN PORTER.—Born in Boston, Jan. 24, 1837; son of Royal L. and Sarah A. (Pratt) Porter. He sailed for Europe a few weeks before our Class Day, and spent much time in travelling in Egypt and Syria. He studied in Berlin and Heidelberg, and, returning home in July, 1861, entered the Andover Theological Seminary in September. He was licensed to preach by the Norfolk Association, at Braintree, Jan. 26, 1864. In the spring of the same year, while on a visit to the West, he was attacked by fever, and so reduced in strength as to prevent much labor for many months. After graduating from Andover in August, he remained at home in Dorchester, taking charge of the church there during the absence of its pastor. During the next year, he preached occasionally in various places; but did not feel able to accept any proposals for settlement. By the advice of his physician and friends, he sailed again for Europe, May 31, 1866. After some time spent in England, he went to Switzerland and Italy. Here he studied with great interest the Waldensian movement to give Protestant churches and schools to all the principal towns, and was almost persuaded to accept the charge of the new Italian church at Venice. He went next to Malta, and thence to the East, where he spent the spring of 1867. The work of the American Mission at Beirut, and on the slopes of Mount Lebanon, engaged much of his attention. Afterwards, in Greece, he aided in the distribution of some of the American supplies among the Cretan refugees. Returning through Austria and Germany, he reached Paris in time to see the close of the great exhibition. He arrived at home in January, 1868, and after his return, was occupied in arranging the materials collected in his journey. He took his degree of A. M. in July, 1861. He was ordained over the Hancock Congregational Church, in Lexington, Mass., Oct. 1, 1868, and still continues to be their pastor. He has been called to serve the town in various capacities : as chairman of the School Committee, Trustee of the Public Library, etc. He has occasionally accepted invitations to lecture in Boston and other places. He is a member of the Board of Visitors of Bradford Academy, and of the Overseers' Committee to visit Harvard College, and is acting with the trustees of the new American college, at Aintab, in Asiatic Turkey. He represented Massachusetts in the collection of the Historical Department, at the Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition, in 1876. He has written for various papers and magazines, and is the author of an historical sketch of Lexington, published in 1875. He is a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, of the American Antiquarian Society, and of the New England Historic Genealogical Society. In 1887, he published "Rambles in Old Boston, New England." He is now on a tour round the world, visiting missionary stations of the American Board in India, China, and Japan.

* HENRY AUGUSTUS RICHARDSON. — Born in Boston, Nov. 25, 1836; son of George C. and Susan G. (Moore) Richardson. In October, 1858, he commenced the study of medicine at the United States Marine Hospital in Chelsea, then under the charge of Dr. Charles A. Davis. He came regularly to Boston to attend the lectures of the Harvard Medical School, and there received the degree of M. D., in July, 1861. He had previously been appointed assistant physician of the hospital. He decided at once to enter the service of his country, and, after passing the usual examination, was commissioned acting assistant surgeon in the navy, Aug. 12, 1861. This was the first appointment from New England after the breaking out of the Rebellion, and his vessel, the Cambridge, was the first merchant steamer that left the Charlestown Navy Yard, refitted as a gunboat. Somewhat to his disappointment, his vessel was assigned to the monotonous blockade off Wilmington and Beaufort. However, as always, he faithfully performed his duties, and from the constant exposure incident to them was developed a disease which had already proved fatal to other members of his family. He was forced to resign his commission, June 5, 1862. He gained some strength in the comfort of home, and spent the summer months in Southern New Hampshire. At the approach of winter, desiring a drier climate than that of New England, he went to Minnesota. But the disease had made too deep an inroad, and he returned home in May, fully impressed with the certainty of impending death. He lingered, without much pain, until July 1, 1863, when he died at his father's house in Cambridge.

*NATHANIEL RUSSELL, JR. — Born in Plymouth, June 13, 1837; son of Nathaniel and Catherine E. (Elliott) Russell. Immediately after graduation, he returned to Plymouth, and entered his father's counting-room. He was naturally very fond of navigation, and embraced an early opportunity to enter the service of the United States Coast Survey. He went, with Captain Harrison, to Eastern Virginia, and, while in discharge of his duties there, was attacked by lung fever. He died, after only one week's illness, in Drummond-town, Accomack County, Va., March 25, 1862.

* AMORY POLLARD SAWYER. — Born in Bolton, Oct. 30, 1833; son of Nathan and Lucinda (Pollard) Sawyer. He was absent from college during almost all the Senior year, from ill health. A fishing voyage on which he went was of no benefit; nor a long horseback ride through the mountain region of New Hampshire, undertaken after graduation. He returned to his home, and lived quietly, waiting for the inevitable end. He was twice chosen by his fellow townsmen a member of their School Committee, and performed such duties as his health would permit. He died at his father's house in Bolton, Mass., May 20, 1860.

JOSEPH ALDEN SHAW. — Born in Athol, Jan. 4, 1836; son of Linus H. and Louisa (Alden) Shaw. After graduation, he was appointed principal of the Academy at New Salem, Mass. Here he remained a year, and then came to Boston, and commenced the study of the law in the office of John Wilder, Esq. In January, 1860, he accepted the position of first assistant master in the Elm Park Collegiate Institute, Litchfield, Conn. He resigned this in April, 1861, to take charge of the grammar school in West Yarmouth, Mass. He removed again to Connecticut in the autumn, and took charge of a select school in Woodbury. The next summer he was invited to return to New Salem, his first field, and he became preceptor of the Academy there in September, 1862. Here he remained five years. In April, 1863, he was chosen one of the School Committee of the town, and retained the office as long as he resided there. He was married, Nov. 18, 1863, to Eliza Antoinette, daughter of Clark and Nancy (Kendall) Thompson, of New Salem. A son, who lived but a few hours, was born, April 16, 1865; a second son, named Henry Alden, was born June 3, 1867. During his residence in New Salem he wrote two lectures: one, on the "White Hills and their Scenery"; the other, on "Chemistry." These have been delivered in various places. He took his degree of A. M. in July, 1855. He removed to Worcester in August, 1867, having accepted the position of teacher of ancient languages and rhetoric in the Highland Military Academy there, and in 1871 he was made principal. He has published, in the Proceedings of the American Institute of Instruction, a lecture on "English Pronunciation: What have Teachers to do about it?" He has contributed various articles on philological and educational subjects to the "Journal of Education" and to the daily journals. He is a member of the American Philological Association. His third son, Robert Kendall, was born July 18, 1871. His son Henry is in the second year at the Harvard Medical School. In 1881, having been invited by J. B. Chickering, of Cincinnati, to be instructor of Latin and Greek in the Chickering Institute in Cincinnati, he went there in September of that year, and held the position till the year following Mr. Chickering's death. He then returned East, and in 1883, was called to the care of the Classical Department of Trinity School, Tivoli-on-Hudson, N. Y. In the summer of 1887, he returned to Worcester, and is again head master of the Highland Military Academy, in that city. Address, Highland Military Academy, Worcester, Mass.

* FRANK HOWARD SHOREY.—Born in Boston, Nov. 2, 1837; son of John and Cornelia (Guild) Shorey. He commenced his legal studies immediately after graduation, in the office of J. H. Wakefield, Esq., No. 10 Court Street, Boston. He was admitted to the Suffolk bar in December, 1859, and began the practice of his profession in the office where he had studied. He had every prospect of success, but symptoms of consumption soon appeared, and he was forced to give up work. He sank slowly under the disease, and died at his home in Dedham, Jan. 24, 1862.

* THOMAS JEFFERSON SPURR. — Born in Worcester, Feb. 2, 1838; son of Samuel D. and Mary A. (Lamb) Spurr. After graduation, he remained at home for a time in ill health; then commenced the study of the law, at first with the help of a reader, and afterwards unaided, as his eyes, which had troubled him much in college, grew better. He was in the office of Messrs. Devens & Hoar in Worcester, until September, 1860, when he entered the Harvard Law School. His eyes soon began again to trouble him; and in April, 1861, he sailed for Russia with the hope of improving his health. He was there when the war broke out, and hastened home, arriving in September. After the battle of Ball's Bluff, he was offered and accepted a commission as first lieutenant in the Fifteenth Massachusetts, commanded by his friend, Colonel Devens. His commission is dated Nov. 17, 1861. He at once joined his regiment, and with it shared all the battles of the Peninsular campaign. At the battle of Antietam, Sept. 17, 1862, while dressing the line of his company, he received a mortal wound. His thigh was shattered by a minie-ball. Two of his men came where he lay, and offered to carry him to the rear, but he ordered them back to the ranks. The regiment was almost instantly forced to retreat to the shelter of a wood, and the ground where he fell was not again occupied by our troops until after the battle. He lay on the ground all day and all night. The next day the enemy occupied the ground, and a South Carolina officer, a college acquaintance, caused him to be removed to a farm-yard near by, and gave him a blanket. Here our forces found him when they reoccupied the ground, three days afterwards. He was taken to the nearest hospital, and then to Hagerstown, where his mother and brother-in-law joined him. He suffered terrible agony until an operation was performed; but even then there was no hope of saving his life. He was conscious to the last, met death bravely, and throughout all his suffering, thought only of others.

He died in Hagerstown, Md., ten days after the battle, Sept. 27, 1862.

JOHN THOMAS STODDARD. — Born in Plymouth, Jan. 24, 1838; son of Isaac H. and Martha Le Baron (Thomas) Stoddard. After a short trip to the West, in the fall of 1858, he settled in Plymouth, and began farming. He was also interested in the ice business, and employed as clerk in the Plymouth Bank until 1863. At that time he became engaged in a rivet company, and took charge of a mill for making cotton bagging by a new process, for which he had taken out a patent. He was married, Oct. 19, 1864, to Elizabeth, daughter of Jeremiah and Mary C. Farris, of Plymouth. A son, named Henry Farris, was born Feb. 5, 1866; a daughter, named Mary Le Baron, was born May 11, 1867. He still resides in Plymouth, Mass.

JOHN PUTNAM SWINERTON. — Born in Taunton, Dec. 29, 1838; son of John P. and Rebecca B. (Spalding) Swinerton. From graduation until 1862, he was engaged in teaching a school in Norton, Mass. He was next appointed principal of the academy in Dighton. He resigned this to accept the place of sub-master in the Taunton High School, in September, 1863. He took his degree of A. M. in 1866. In February, 1867, he was promoted to the office of principal in the High School. He continued principal of the Taunton High School until September, 1877, when he resigned to accept the corresponding position in Lynn, Mass. He was appointed principal of the Framingham High School and Academy in September, 1881; and March 1, 1886, went back to Taunton to take charge of the High School there. Address, Taunton, Mass.

JAMES DANFORTH THURBER. — Born in Plymouth, Feb. 21, 1839; son of James and Elizabeth (Danforth) Thurber. During the first winter after graduation, he was a teacher in a boarding school in Pottstown, Penn. He returned to his home in Plymouth in February, 1859. In the autumn of that year he took charge of a school in Norton, Mass., but resigned it in the spring to accept the charge of one in Plymouth. He gave this up in December, 1860, and resumed the one in Norton. In April, 1861, he went to Washington, and in July of the same year was appointed a clerk in the Treasury. Here he remained until Aug. 12, 1862, when he enlisted as a private in the Thirteenth Massachusetts. After serving ten months in the ranks, and sharing the dangers of four battles, in one of which (Antietam) he was wounded, he received a commission as second lieutenant in the Fifty-fifth Massachusetts, June 15, 1863. He was promoted to first lieutenant, June 29, 1863; captain, Nov. 3, 1863; and was brevetted major United States Volunteers, March 13, 1865. With his regiment, he served in North and South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida. He was in the battle of Honey Hill, and in both attacks on James Island. He was among the first to enter Charleston after the evacuation. He was officially reported for gallantry after Honey Hill, and was a second time wounded at James Island. His term of service expired Aug. 29, 1865. He returned to the South as a civilian, and resided in Charleston and Savannah. He returned to Plymouth in December, 1866, and was appointed to a situation in the Boston Custom House, March 20, 1867. He was married, Aug. 12, 1862, to Mary A., daughter of Amasa and Esther S. Bartlett, of Plymouth. A daughter, named Elizabeth, was born Sept. 5, 1866; a son, named William, was born March 27, 1868; and a daughter, named Mary Tyler, born July 11, 1874. He resigned his place in the Boston Custom House in November, 1874, to accept a situation in the Plymouth Savings Bank. This he continues to hold. He has been a member of the School Committee for the past eight years, and for many years one of the Trustees of the Pilgrim Society. Address, Plymouth, Mass.

GERARD CURTIS TOBEY. — Born in Wareham, Oct. 16, 1836; son of Joshua B. and Susannah K. (Pratt) Tobey. After graduation, he was for a short time clerk in the Wareham Bank, but, having decided to study law, he entered the Harvard Law School in November, 1858. He received the degree of LL. B. in 1860, and entered the office of Messrs. Brooks & Ball, Boston. In September, 1862, he enlisted as a private in the Massachusetts Light Battery, nine-months men. He was admitted to the Suffolk bar in May, 1863. In June, he was offered a commission as first lieutenant in the Second Massachusetts Cavalry, but declined it. He continued in the law office of Messrs. Brooks & Ball, in Boston, becoming a member of the firm in January, 1869. In 1872, the increasing demands of his private interests, and the personal attention due to business trusts with which he continues to be associated, compelled his withdrawal from the copartnership. He was in Europe in 1877; since his return has been actively employed in law, banking, shipping, and manufacturing, and the management of trust estates. He resides in Wareham. Address, 160 High Street, Boston.

HORACE PRATT TOBEY. — Born in Wareham, Jan. 4, 1838; son of Joshua B. and Susannah K. (Pratt) Tobey. After spending a year at home, in October, 1859, he formed a partnership with Mr. Henry Leeds, Jr., under the style of Leeds & Tobey, in the iron and commission business, No. 23 Broad Street, Boston. In October, 1862, the partnership was dissolved, and he continued the business alone. In 1863, he built a spike manufactory in Cambridgeport. In January, 1871, he was appointed acting treasurer of the Tremont Nail Company, a corporation located in West Wareham, Mass.; and, in July of the same year, treasurer of the same corporation, succeeding his father, who died Dec. 25, 1870. In October, 1871, his place of business was removed to No. 120 Milk Street; in April, 1875, to No. 17 Oliver Street; and in November, 1886, to No. 160 High Street. He is engaged in the manufacture and sale of steel, iron, and nails, as treasurer and agent of the Tremont Nail Company. He resides in Wareham. Address, No. 160 High Street, Boston.

ROBERT NOXON TOPPAN. — Born in Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 17, 1836; son of Charles and Laura A. (Noxon) Toppan. After graduation, he began the study of law in the office of Messrs. Tracy, Wait & Olmstead, in New York; he also attended the law lectures of Columbia College, from which he received the degree of LL. B., in May, 1861. He took his degree of A. M. from Harvard the same year. He was admitted to the New York bar, June 4, and began practice at No. 6 Wall Street. He published, about this time, a translation of Jouffroy's "Ethics." He sailed for Europe, June 25, 1862, and remained there until the spring of 1868. He spent the greater part of the time from 1868 to 1880 in Europe. He married, Oct. 6, 1880, Sarah M. Cushing, daughter of Hon. William Cushing, of Newburyport. After being in Europe for some months, resided for a time in Newburyport, where a daughter, Laura Noxon, was born Nov. 17, 1881. In 1882, moved to Cambridge, which has since been his residence, and where a daughter, Fannie Cushing, was born Aug. 26, 1883, and a son, Cushing, Nov. 25, 1886. * JAMES WILDER GATES. — He left our class at the end of our Freshman year, and entered the Sophomore class of Dartmouth College. He was graduated in 1858, and went to Cardenas, Cuba, to engage in mercantile pursuits.

His health failed, and he returned to his home in Cambridge, where he died Feb. 24, 1863.

* WILLIAM GIBBONS. — Born in Philadelphia, Jan. 16, 1834; son of William and Abby (Hopper) Gibbons. He entered our class at the beginning of our Sophomore year. On the evening of Dec. 15, 1855, as he was walking out from Boston, he stumbled over some obstacle, and fell violently to the ground. He rose, and felt no immediate injury from his fall; but the next day was troubled with sharp pain and dizziness; hemorrhage from the stomach followed, and, on the following day, Dec. 17, he died. An interesting memoir of Gibbons, prepared by Rev. Theodore Tebbets, was printed for his friends, and copies of it were sent to the members of the class by his mother.

HERSEY BRADFORD GOODWIN. — In the winter of 1855-56 he left college on account of ill health, and Jan. 23 sailed from New York for Melbourne. The vessel, after discharging her cargo there, went to Batavia, and thence to Singapore. Here Goodwin left her, and returned home in another vessel, reaching Boston in November, 1856. He then entered the counting-room of Mr. R. C. Mackay, afterwards Messrs. R. C. Mackay & Son, in Boston. In January, 1859, he sailed again for the East as supercargo and agent of the ship Dolphin. He spent several months in Batavia, Singapore, and Penang, and returned by the overland route to England, in January, 1860. After a visit to the West, he remained quietly at his home in Boston in poor health. He suffered much from an insidious disease caused by his residence in a tropical climate, and was unable to undertake any regular work. In the autumn of 1862, he joined the paymaster's department of the army, and was stationed at New York. In June, 1863, his health having improved, he decided to return to active business, and, after spending some time in his former office, started for Calcutta, via England, in February, 1864. Here he was established as a commission agent until March, 1866. His life was varied only by a journey into the interior of India. He returned to America by way of Egypt, Palestine, and Europe, and reached Boston in August, 1866. He formed a copartnership with Mr. Frank Hodgkinson, for the transaction of a general commission business, Jan. 1, 1867. The style of the firm was Hodgkinson & Goodwin. During the winter of 1868 he made a business visit to Cuba. In January, 1869, Mr. J. H. Locke was admitted a partner into the firm of Hodgkinson & Goodwin; and in August of the same year, Mr. Hodgkinson retiring, the firm name was changed to Goodwin, Locke & Co. They continued the commission business, dealing chiefly in flour, grain, and lumber. In October, 1875, they opened a branch house in New York, for the transaction of a similar business at that point. In June, 1871, Goodwin married Ellen C., daughter of the late Hon. Thomas Hopkinson, of Cambridge, and has since resided in that place. In the spring of 1875, he made a short trip to Europe for the benefit of his health. He has children: Amelia Mackay, born June, 1872; Elliot Hersey, born January, 1874; Grace Mary, born February, 1876; Francis Hopkinson, born in June, 1883, but lived only five weeks; and Frances Barnard, born in July, 1885. In 1876 was chosen a Trustee of the Cambridge Public Library. In 1879 was elected a director of the Merchandise National Bank. In March, 1880, was elected president of the Boston Commercial Exchange, and re-elected in 1881. In January, 1881, the firm of Goodwin, Locke & Co. was dissolved, and he continued the Boston business under the name of H. B. Goodwin & Co. He was chosen president of the new Boston Chamber of Commerce in 1885, and again in 1886. In 1886, made a trip to England for rest and change. He continues to reside in Cambridge. His address is No. 15 India Street, Boston.

GEORGE HUNTLY GORDON.— He entered our class at the beginning of the second term of our Freshman year, and left it to engage in business during the second term of our next year. Has lived in Boston most of the time since then.

GEORGE FREDERICK GRANGER.— He left our class in July, 1855, and entered the Sophomore class of Bowdoin College. He did not remain more than one year there. He received a commission as first lieutenant in the Ninth Maine Volunteers, Sept. 21, 1862. He was promoted to captain, Sept. 23, and to major, June 23, 1863. He was wounded in the engagement at Drury's Bluff, May 16, 1864. He was commissioned lieutenant-colonel of his regiment, June 6, 1864; colonel, Sept. 13, 1864; and brevetted brigadier-general, June 13, 1865. The regiment was mustered out of service, July 13, 1865. He returned home, and engaged in the study of the law, at Calais, Maine.

WILLIAM PAYNE HALL.— He left college at the end of our Sophomore year, and went into business at Davenport, Iowa. He returned to Boston in 1861, and went into business with Messrs. T. K. Cummins & Co. The firm was dissolved Jan. 1, 1869, and a new one, under the same style, formed for commission business in Boston and New York. Hall took charge of the New York house. This firm was dissolved in 1873, and he began business in Boston for himself, as a broker in dyes and drugs, at No. 40 Kilby Street. He was married, June 10, 1863, to Susan P., daughter of James H. Blake, of Boston, and has children: Maria Hallett, born in May, 1864; Joseph Bartlett, born in January, 1869; and Susan Blake, born in February, 1877. He lost two children in infancy. He resides in Milton. Address, 11 Central Street, Boston.

* GEORGE CHANDLER HATHAWAY.— He left our class at the end of our Sophomore year, and entered the Junior class of Tufts College. From an examination of the catalogues, he would seem to have left Tufts at the end of his Junior year. In May, 1861, he was heard from in Vermont. He was then practising law in Rutland, and was married. His wife was Miss Dana, of Woodstock, Vt. Died suddenly, at the Grand Central Hotel, New York, May 31, 1871. His wife and child had died previously. He was agent in New York for a marble quarry in Rutland.

* HENRY JACKSON HOW.— He left our class during the first term of our Freshman year, and re-entered college in the class of 1859, with which he was graduated. He studied medicine for a short time, and then, preferring a more active employment, engaged in business in his native town, Haverhill. After the fall of Fort Sumter, he raised one of the first companies, and was unanimously chosen its captain. The company was joined to the Fourteenth Massachusetts Regiment, and ordered to Fort Warren. Here, How was for some time senior officer ; but after the arrival of the colonel, an unfortunate controversy arose, and he was superseded. He was commissioned major in the Nineteenth Massachusetts, Aug. 3, 1861. He distinguished himself in the battle of Ball's Bluff, and captured the only prisoners taken in that affair. In the battle of Glendale, June 30, 1862, he received a mortal wound, and died after about two hours' suffering.

JAMES JAMIESON.— He left our class during the first term of our Freshman year, and entered the University of New York. His residence then was Boston. The Secretary has been unable to trace him further.

* BENJAMIN DEWEES MARSHALL JONES.— He left our class during the second term of our Junior year, and returned to Virginia. He was married before the war broke out, and had a plantation near Petersburg. He lost his property during the war, and in 1879 was living in Bellefonte, Va. He had three children.

HENRY LAWRENCE.— He left our class during the second term of the Freshman year, and entered the class of 1859 for a short time, but he soon left on account of poor health, and went to Europe for a few months. Returning, was with Jewett, Tebbetts & Co. till the spring of 1857. Sailed for Melbourne, Australia, putting in at Rio Janeiro on the way with a cargo of lumber consigned to the house of Newell, Hooper & Stevens, with whom he remained till the news of the failure of his father's house, Lawrence, Stone & Co., compelled him to seek other employment. For a few weeks he drove a team of six horses from Melbourne to Bendiga, and then a coach on the same route. He next traded in horses, cattle, and sheep, driving them overland to Sydney, Melbourne, and other markets. He returned via England after an absence of six years. He was in business with his father, then for a short time was with D. Appleton & Co, whom he left in 1871. Since then has devoted himself to etching, drawing, and sketching. June 26, 1871, married Marie Therise, daughter of Dr Joseph Mauran, of Providence, R. I. He has no children. Lived in New York City for some years, but for the last fourteen years has lived in Brooklyn. Address, 128 Livingston Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

WILLIAM HENRY FITZHUGH LEE. — Born in Virginia, May 31, 1837; second son of Gen. Robert E. Lee. Left college during the second term of our Junior year to accept a commission in the United States Army, which he resigned in 1859 to be married, and was living on his plantation, "The White House," New Kent County, Va., when Virginia passed the ordinance of secession. He then joined the Confederate Army, raised a company of cavalry, and was promoted until he became a major-general of cavalry. He was attached to the cavalry of the Army of Northern Virginia. In June, 1863, he was taken prisoner and confined in Fortress Monroe. In November, he was sent to Fort Lafayette, N. Y. In December, 1863, his wife died in Richmond. He was exchanged in 1864 for General Neal Dow. He was married in Petersburg, Nov. 27, 1867, to Mary Tabb, daughter of the Hon. Geo. W. Bolling, of Petersburg. He lived at the "White House" after the war until 1874, when he moved to "Ravensworth," where he now lives. Since the war he has been in the Virginia Senate. He is extensively interested in agriculture, and has been president of the Virginia State Agricultural Society. He has two children, both boys. He is a member of the House of Representatives in the Fiftieth Congress. Address, Ravensworth, Burke's Station P. O., Fairfax County, Va.

FRANCIS LEWIS LOWNDES. — He entered our class at the beginning of the second term of our Freshman year, and left during the second term, Junior year. He had intended to enter commercial life, but the sudden death of his uncle, Mortimer Livingston, Esq., in whose office a situation was offered him, and the financial crisis of the period (1857), prevented his carrying out his plans. After a year spent in leisure and desultory reading, he commenced the study of the law in the office of Alexander Hamilton, Jr., Esq., in New York. He also attended the law lectures of Columbia College, from which he received the degree of LL. B. in 1861. He was admitted to the bar, by examination, in May of that year, and practised his profession in New York. He retired from business in 1880, and lives in New York City. Address, No. 145 West Fourteenth Street, New York.

CHARLES DOMINIQUE SPRAGUE. — He left our class during our Freshman year, and is supposed to have engaged in business. His residence then was Gibraltar, Spain.

* FREDERICK WILLIAMS STANWOOD. — He left college at the end of the first term of our Sophomore year, and returned to his home in New Hampshire. Here he spent several years in comparative leisure, in order to re-establish his health, which was not good. He was appointed town clerk of Hopkinton, in October, 1859, to fill a vacancy, and elected to the office in March, 1860. He resigned it in January, 1861, and made a visit to the West. Returning home to spend the summer, he made another visit the next winter. Finally, in October, 1863, he removed to Chicago, and accepted the situation of chief clerk in the freight department of the Chicago and Milwaukee Railroad. This he retained until May, 1865, when the railway was leased to the Chicago and Northwestern Company, and he was appointed ticket agent of the Milwaukee division of that road, and of the Columbus, Chicago and Indiana Central Railroad. His health failed after the great fire in Chicago of 1871, and he went to California, and then returned to Hopkinton, N. H., where he died of consumption, Jan. 24, 1877.

GEORGE TOLMAN. — He left college in April, 1857, and after travelling in the West a short time, accepted a situation in the freight office of the Michigan Central Railroad, in Detroit. He made a visit to New England in 1858, and attended the Commencement of the class. Soon afterwards he removed to Toledo, O., and was employed in the freight department of the Wabash and Western Railroad. He returned to New England about December, 1858. He accepted a clerkship in the Boston and Worcester Railroad office, April 1, 1859. He resigned this, and entered the office of the New England Farmer newspaper. He was married, June 12, 1861, to Lizzie B. Adams, of Concord. He resides in Concord, of which town he has twice been selectman. He had previously lived in Dorchester. He has had five children : Adams, born in Boston, April 15, 1862 ; Mary Mayo, born in Concord, Oct. 8, 1863, and died in Northfield, Vt., July 31, 1866 ; William Nichols, born in Dorchester, Nov. 2, 1867 ; Charles Edward, born in Concord, Sept. 12, 1871 ; and James Henry, born in Concord, Aug. 29, 1876. He remained with the New England Farmer till February, 1886, and since then has been engaged in literary work. Address, Concord, Mass.

ALONZO CLAUDIUS WHITRIDGE. — He left our class during the first term of our Sophomore year, and entered Union College. From this he was graduated in 1858.

WALTER HASTINGS WOODS. — He left the class during the first term of our Freshman year. His residence then was Framingham, Mass.

LEIGH RICHMOND WORCESTER. — His name appears upon the catalogue of our first term, but he had no room in Cambridge. His residence was Ipswich, Mass.

ORDER OF EXERCISES FOR CLASS DAY,

---

---

II. PRAYER,

BY THE REV. DR. HUNTINGTON.

III. ORATION,

BY HENRY BROOKS ADAMS, OF QUINCY, MASS.

IV. MUSIC.

V. POEM,

BY GEORGE WASHINGTON COPP NOBLE, OF SOMERSWORTH, N. H.

VI. ODE,

BY WILLIAM GILCHRIST GORDON, OF NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

Alma Mater, we pause on thy threshold to-day,
Now the time of our sojourn is o'er,
While we turn from the hopes that allure us away,
To ask for thy blessing once more ;
Not a son of thy nurture can ever forget
The mother who blesses him now ;
He will think of thee oft with a tear of regret,
While time marks its score on his brow.

May the sons who are leaving thy shelter to-night
Be true to their God and to thee,
While they faithfully strive to interpret aright
The precepts they learned at thy knee :
May the bread thou shalt cast on the waters to-day
Return to enrich thee at last,
When thy sons in their gratitude strive to repay
The debt that they owe to the past.

As we leave the dear home that has sheltered our youth,
 And the comrades who 've been with us here,
 While we sought 'mid the lore of the past for the truth,
 And dreamed the bright treasure was near,
 Through the scenes that are gone by our memory led,
 O'er the graves of the friends lying there,
 Shall the souls of the living commune with the dead
 While we whisper our parting in prayer.

It is strange that our hearts should be joyous to-day
 When we part from the friends who are dear,
 That the smile and the tone should be gladsome and gay
 When the moment of parting is near ;
 But the sunlight of love as it passes away
 On the clouds of our sorrow is cast,
 And the joy that is filling our glad hearts to-day
 Is the image of joy that is past.

CLASS FUND.

A FUND of $612 was raised at the time of our graduation, contributed by eighty-five members of the class, to pay the expenses of Class Day and Commencement Day, and to pay for the class cradle, the class book, printing the secretary's first report, etc. There remained of this fund in the hands of the secretary in 1864, the sum of $95.30. The Class Committee were instructed, in 1863, "to collect money for a class fund." They have since received, from fifty-eight members of the class, $1,851, in amounts varying from $3 to $100, making, together with the balance of the original fund, $95.30, in all, $1,946.30. Some gains have been made from changes of investments, and some savings from income after paying for entertainments on Commencement Day, class dinners, printing reports, and other class expenses, and the fund is invested. ## THE MEMORIAL WINDOW

IN MEMORY OF OUR CLASSMATES WHO FELL IN THE WAR.

IN January, 1875, Foote, Ozias Goodwin, and Magoun were appointed a committee to arrange to place in Memorial Hall a stained glass window in memory of our classmates, Eells, Lowell, Mason, Patten, Richardson, and Spurr, who fell in the war. After the death of Goodwin, in 1878, Phillips was chosen as a member of the committee in his place. The committee issued a circular, requesting subscriptions from the class, and received from them contributions which, with the gift of $100 from the mother of a deceased classmate, and with interest, amounted to $1,500, which was the cost of the window. The committee selected, as subjects for the two parts of the window, the figures of Leonidas and John Hampden, and for the inscription upon one part of the window these words, written by Lowell: "Died for the cause of civilization and law, and the self-restrained freedom which is their result"; and upon the other these words, which Patten wrote: "As for the chances of life or death, neither is welcome without honor or duty.—either is welcome in the path of honor and duty." The window was made by Cottier & Co., of New York, and was placed in Memorial Hall, on the north side, near the western end of the hall, in October, 1882.

OTHER SUBSCRIPTIONS.

THE sum of $1,045 was contributed by the class, in 1866–1867, toward the cost of Memorial Hall; and they contributed, in 1869–1879, $2,680 to the class subscription fund of the college; and, in 1879, $125 to the memorial of General William F. Bartlett.
